A Great U. S. Flier.
Not One Mayor Drunk.
Americans in Russia.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEWS OF anti-Catholic agitation in Rome becomes more serious, especially in the light of events in Madrid and other parts of Spain. The recent attack by Fascists on a mail van carrying letters for Pope Pius was followed yesterday by other demonstrations against students of Catholic institutions in Rome.

Rioters surrounded the Catholic students' headquarters, stoning the building, breaking all windows up to the fifth floor. The police had been summoned but the Fascists students overwhelmed them.

WINDOWS WERE broken in other Catholic headquarters and the situation is strained between the Italian government and in the Vatican.

Pope Pius, since early in March, has refused to receive Count de Vecchi, appointed by Mussolini, as Italian ambassador to the Holy See.

Additional anxiety is caused in Catholic circles by the action of Spain's republican government ordering the public registry to make an inventory of "all property holdings of Catholic religious orders in Spain."

It is feared in Catholic circles that this may be a prelude to confiscation, the enactment of a measure to declare all property of religious houses state property.

THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND Spanish women have signed a protest against the recent burning of churches and convents in Spain, and a petition asking for compulsory teaching of Catholicism in all Spanish schools.

The Spanish government has made no official reply as yet to the protest of Pope Pius against the destruction of Spanish Catholic churches and other property.

CAPT. HAWKS, champion American flier, had his breakfast in London, luncheon in Berlin and dinner in Paris.

The crowd welcoming him at Le Bourget, the Paris flying field, called him "America's meteor man." He flew from London to Berlin in three hours and 15 minutes, spent an hour and 27 minutes in Berlin, plenty of time for luncheon, and flew from Berlin to Paris for his dinner, in three hours and five minutes.

We are proud of our fliers in Europe, proud also of the great self control of our traveling mayors. Mayor Walter E. Batterson, of Hartford, Conn., after luncheon with French officials at the Hotel de Ville, in Paris, said:

"We are 21 mayors who have been continuously banqueting now for nearly a whole week, and not one of us has been drunk. Name another 21 men going through the same experience who could say as much for themselves."

That is doing pretty well for 21 American mayors. But the statement will amuse Frenchmen, who never drink ice water and never get drunk.

SENATOR BORAH laughs at "dull minds" that object to doing business with Russia, and advises us to go after the Russian trade that European nations are all seeking.

Mr. Borah points out that the success of the Russian five-year plan is largely AN AMERICAN SUCCESS.

"Over 3,000 of our able engineers and industrial managers are over there. Over $200,000,000 credit is being extended. General Motors, General Electric, Ford and many wealthy corporations are there."

Senator Borah thinks we could "safely absorb" some of that Russian trade, created to a large extent by American machines and American brains.

Against depression, and the timidity that makes it worse, the gods of earth fight in vain for the present.

President Hoover announced that prosperity is just around the corner. And the next day, which was yesterday, stocks went to the lowest prices since 1923.

WARD RANDALL, 12 years old, of Whitehall, Ill., wins the American spelling championship. The word "foulard" was too much for the boy next to him.

Blanche Krell, of Detroit, almost won the girls' championship but "impugn" was too hard for her, and Mary Scheidler, aged 14, won.

Correct spelling, easy for some, impossible for others, is an inborn talent, as is music. One of the best spellers in the world was Leo Ashley Grace, formerly of Plainfield, N. J. He could spell "phthisic" when barely 3 years of age, and never made a mistake.

AS BRITISH industry drops, crime rises. Home Office criminal statistics show a 3 per cent increase in criminality. The total is comparatively small. One United States city supplies more crime in a year than all the British islands.

Depression and idleness have bad effects everywhere.

Prudhomme said long ago, and wisely:

By ED PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 28.—The 1931 session of the State Legislature adjourns this afternoon after administering the final death blow to the Musmanno coal and iron police bill.

Going down in history as the Legislature noted for killing rather than passing constructive measures, the session maintained its reputation to the end by saving for its final slaughter the coal police bill, the first measure introduced.

REQUIEM BY RIAL

Senator Rial, of Westmoreland County, uncompromising foe of the Musmanno bill, administered the coup de grace this morning by refusing to yield in compromise and as a result Representative M. A. Musmanno gave up the fight and moved to discharge the conference committee of Senate and House.

In the dying hours of the session, agreement was reached by another conference committee on congressional reapportionment. Gov. Pinchot called a conference which ended the deadlock and obviated the necessity of election of all 34 congresmen-at-large.

Opposition of Senator Rial to any change in the Senate amendments giving the corporation police wide police powers, was the cause of the disagreement on the coal police bill, Musmanno said.

WON SUPPORT

Other senatorial conferees were willing to compromise, he said, adding:

"I have argued and pleaded with Senator Rial that he recede from his position that the guards created under my bill be given the powers of police of cities of the first class. He has refused to do so. I have offered to let him write his own provisions as to the powers they should have on the property; he refused that.

"I offered to give these guards all the power and authority needed to prevent felonies and misdemeanors and to apprehend and arrest felons and misdemeanants when the crimes were committed or about to be committed on the property. He refused that.

"He wants the guards given soverign police power. I absolutely refused to be a party to the bartering away of the sovereign powers of the commonwealth.

"On this rock the conference has split."

Senate Names Boyd President Pro Tem

HARRISBURG, May 28—(INS.)—Senator James S. Boyd, of Norristown, today was elected interim president pro tempore of the State Senate by a vote of 45 to 3. Senator Herman Baumer, Cambria County, the Democratic candidate, received the three votes of his colleagues.

Under traditional Senate custom, Boyd will be named president pro tem of the 1933 session when the Legislature convenes for its next regular session.

ROBERT GRAHAM

SCHENLEY GOLF PRO ARRESTED

Charged with striking a caddy and another boy at Schenley Park golf links, Robert Graham, Schenley golf professional, was free today on his own recognizance, facing two charges of assault and battery.

Graham was arrested yesterday on warrants sworn out before Alderman John A. Collins, 4731 Second avenue, Hazelwood, by John Wood, father of Melvin Wood, Negro, 730 Naylor street, and Joseph Morgavo, 747 Naylor street.

The warrants charge Graham with striking Melvin while he was asleep in the caddies' quarters and of striking Joseph when he protested against Graham's treatment of Melvin.

Hearing has been set for tomorrow night. Graham resigned a job as policeman at Mellon National Bank to take the Schenley Park job.

Graham denied striking the boys. He said he had chased them off the course. He said he was trying to break up the stealing of golf balls, and dice shooting by caddies.

PRESBYTERIANS TO CLASH OVER BIRTH CONTROL

Fail to Keep Dispute Off Assembly Floor; Federal Council Bolt Proposed

Efforts to forstall debate on birth control during the one hundred and forty-third General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., which opened in Syria Mosque today, are believed to have been futile.

Indications were that the issue probably will come up for consideration despite the action late yesterday of the special commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage, eliminating passages concerning birth control from its report.

This was seen in overtures to be introduced demanding that the General Assembly sever connections and withdraw support from the Federal Council of Churches of Cmrist in America, because of its recent action indorsing birth control.

COMMITTEE TO RULE

The overture is sponsored by commissioners from the Hudson (N. Y.) Presbytery. From Little Rock, Ark., comes another asking that the General Assembly protest the action of the Federal Council.

Before either can come up for debate, however, they must be referred to the assembly committee on bills and overtures for recommendation.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, who retires as moderator today, presided at the opening meeting, which was devoted largely to devotional rites, including the observance of holy communion. The first business session of the assembly will be held in the afternoon with

Farrell, Schwab Taking Turns in Optimist Role

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

And they're not giving us an 18-day diet of applesauce. Both boys refuse to clip the wages of their workingmen.

They control the steel works, which is doing as well as can be expected. And while they have faith in the future they must admit we need another war to bring back the copper stocks.

There's one good thing about the depression we have just whipped. It eliminated the yes-men.

Even a motion picture magnate is liable to get an argument these days.

When a big man makes a statement today there isn't so much nodding north and south. Most of the boys wave their heads east and west.

Sky Explorer Terms Flight Glorious Beyond Dreams

International News Service.

BERLIN, May 28.

Back to solid earth after a journey of exploration into a strange hitherto unknown world 10 miles above the level of the sea, Prof. Auguste Piccard told with enthusiasm today of a voyage "magnificent beyond conception" and paralleling the imaginative fantasies of Jules Verne. He said:

"It was a glorious flight. The balloon was under control every moment, and it was only exhaustion of the oxygen supply in our aluminum gondola that forced us to descend before reaching the plains of upper Italy, where I had planned the flight to end.

"We obtained plenty of material which I believe to be of the highest scientific value.

"I am highly satisfied with the scientific results of the expedition. All our instruments functioned perfectly, and the barograph recorded an altitude of 16,000 meters (51,000 feet), placing the balloon definitely outside the earth's atmosphere and in the stratospheric area I have tried so long to reach.

"We had ideal weather for observations. The gondola proved absolutely airtight and the oxygen and atmospheric pressure devices worked without a flaw. This faultless performance of our mechanical contrivances enabled us to make detailed scientific observations of that far-off layer of space where the rules governing the earth's atmospheric conditions cease to exist."

DEVINE FACING DEPORTATION

Pat Devine, local Communist leader, today faced a year in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., and deportation at the expiration of his sentence, following his plea of guilty, in the New York District Federal Court yesterday, to charges of obtaining a passport under false representations.

On the provision that he does not return to this country, other sentences, totaling nine years, were suspended. Devine is to be returned to Scotland, where he was born.

Devine, active here as an organizer for the Communist party, was arrested during the Red Day observation August 2, 1929. He also was arrested while speaking at Trade Union Unity League meetings, unemployment demonstrations, and organization meetings of the Communist party.

Devine was jailed several months ago after he organized a strike at Lawrence, Mass., with the aid of Edith Berkman.

James A. Hasenauer, of the Fulton Loan Service, was fined $500 and ordered to make restitution and pay the costs. His penalty is the severest possible for a first offense.

Charles Jennings, Jr., was fined $300, order to make restitution and pay the costs. He was manager of the Daily Loan Association.

2 SCIENTISTS UP 10 MILES IN CLOUDS

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, May 28.—Safe and sound after a hazardous journey through the hitherto unchartered expanses of the sky 10 miles above the surface of the earth, Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer, Swiss scientists, trekked back to haven in the Austrian Alps today.

The two scientists landed their huge balloon on the Gurgler Fermer Glacier in the Oetz-Thal range near the Austro-Italian frontier at 10 p. m. yesterday, almost 18 hours after taking off from Augsburg, Austria. Stepping out of the airtight aluminum gondola in which they had been "imprisoned" during their momentous exploration of the skies, they started to walk back to the nearest settlement while search parties had virtually abandoned hope for their recovery.

CLAIM NEW RECORD

As an incident to their scientific achievements, Piccard and Kipfer claimed to have set a new altitude record for any type of aircraft, ascending to greater heights than ever before achieved by free balloons or heavier-than-air machines.

For several hours through the night the daring explorers felt their way along the glacier and mid-way to the nearest settlement they met one of the search parties which had been scouring the mountainous district for them.

Prof. Piccard told the rescuers that he had succeeded in the attempt which many scientists characterized as foolhardy as well as almost impossible.

FEARED FOR LIVES

Details of the descent were not known beyond the fact that Piccard and Kipfer apparently had escaped without ill effects from their long sojourn in the upper reaches of space after spending the night in their craft.

Old Kate, Turf Character, King's Friend, Dies at 85

LONDON, May 28.—(AP.)—Old Kate is dead.

The passing of this picturesque woman who sold race cards on every British course for half a century was chronicled prominently today in the London press. Patronized by kings, peers, race horse owners, jockeys and thousands of fans, she became a national character of her time.

Although known to her neighbors as Mrs. McNeil, her real name was a mystery even to herself, but she said she was born in a workhouse 85 years ago. She was obliged to quit work two years ago on account of failing health. A public subscription, to which King George contributed, enabled her to pass her last days comfortably.

The general public first became acquainted with her when she exhibited anxiety for the King during his illness of 1928. He sent a message of thanks to her after he recovered.

Fascists Trample Pope's Picture, Vatican Arms

ROME, May 28.—(AP.)—Destruction of a portrait of Pope Pius XI by Fascist students in an attack on a Catholic publishing house cast new fuel today on the smoldering resentment of the Vatican toward the Italian government.

The young Blackshirts stormed the headquarters of Civilta Cattolica last night, stoning the windows and commiting other depredations. They tore an oil painting of the Pontiff from the wall, carried it into the streets and trampled it, crying:

"Here is a traitor to his country."

LONDON, May 28.—(INS.)—The Swiss Guards, historical defenders of the Vatican and the Pope, have been equipped with rifles and ammunition to protect the Holy City against any attacks, the London Daily Mail said today.

LEGISLATURE ENDING SESSION WITH 'DONOTHING' RECORD

MANY LIBERAL MEASURES KILLED

Pinchot's Platform Pledges Generally Ignored; Senate Blocks Much Progress

HARRISBURG, May 28—The Legislature of 1931, ending today after an all-night session, will be known as the session which killed bills rather than enacted laws.

The killing and maiming, attributed mainly to the Senate, included Gov. Pinchot's platform planks, with the exception of the 20,000 mile country road program, the labor injunction bills passed only today; the Richards voting machine bill; the 5-mill corporation tax, and the Pymatuning Swamp bill.

Outstanding among the measures killed was the Musmanno coal and iron police bill, first introduced and last buried.

An avalanche of "noes" met liberal and progressive measures in the Senate. The Governor's Fair Rate Board and utility restriction measures were buried deep in committee after they had passed the House.

UTILITIES BILLS DIE

All hopes for passage of public utility legislation ended last night when the senators and representatives failed to reach an agreement on the Howell bill containing the proviso giving the Governor power to dismiss Public Service commissioners without consent of the Senate.

Taking the same treatment were the "yellow dog" contract bills, the city manager bill for Pittsburgh, the Blue Law modification measures, automobile license and registration tax decreases.

Senator James A. Coyne's salary raiser for city controller was lopped off and it was learned that his bill creating two additional judges for Allegheny County, passed by both Houses and then recalled from the Governor, will not be sent back to him for signature.

Labor forces claimed only three measures they favored got by Grundy legislators in House and Senate. Two were the injunction bills which passed last night by a bare majority, the third the Fitzgerald bill, which last week went to the Governor. It provides that deputies must have a year's residence and be clear of criminal records.

LIBERALS BEATEN

Child labor bills, compensation law amendments and civil liberty measures never reached the floors.

One of the bills passed yesterday was that establishing the Greater Pennsylvania commission, headed by Dr. Charles Rettell, of the University of Pittsburgh. It appropriates $450,000 to promote state projects, such as the Ohio River Canal, Pymatuming Swamp and Port of Philadelphia.

All anti-dry bills, as well as Sunday law bills, were killed in committees in both Houses.

The Richards voting machine act, which passed the Senate yesterday, is a part of the defeated election code, and gives more teeth to the voting machine laws. It gives the secretary of the commonwealth authority to purchase machines for counties that have voted to install them, in the event a year has passed and they have not been contracted.

No monetary estimate of the losses was made.

GREEN BACKING RELIEF PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP.)—President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, sees indications of a hard winter ahead. He believes its effects could be minimized by adoption of a four-point remedial program.

He proposed last night that employers guarantee continued work to as many men as possible; that "some thoughtless employers" discontinue "sniping at wage standards;" that all available work be divided pro rata among employes, since each man has a "moral claim" to at least a share, and that immediate plans should be made by the proper agencies for next winter.

DREW TO TAKE HIGH COURT POST SOON

Appointment Victory for Coyne, Malone; Hint P.S.C. Appointment for Woodruff

HARRISBURG, May 28.—Judge James B. Drew of Pittsburgh, nominated to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday by Gov. Pinchot, is expected to resign from the Superior Court within a short time and be sworn to the new office. His appointment was confirmed by the Senate.

Giving him the oath will be a fellow Pittsburgher, Chief Justice Frazer.

Drew's term, to expire at the end of the year, will necessitate him running next fall for re-election to the term of 21 years.

James N. Rule, former resident of Pittsburgh, also was unanimously confirmed by the Senate to be superintendent of instruction.

COUP FOR MALONE

It was a political coup for James F. Malone, secretary of property and supplies, who sponsored both men.

Drew, however, had the active support of Senator Coyne, and particularly Senators Harris and Mansfield.

Some political leaders felt that his unanimous indorsement by the Senate, that has fought Pinchot so bitterly, was an indication of harmony on the next state slate. Others felt that the harmony was "only for the evening."

At the same time it is predicted that George S. Woodruff, friend of Pinchot, would be given the Public Service Commission seat vacated by the resignation of James S. Benn, after the adjournment of the Legislature.

new Spanish republic is not wealth, but poverty.

Gold is being exported from Spain, the value of the Spanish currency is falling, and a country, republic or monarchy, with money that lacks buying power, has trouble ahead.

IN CHICAGO employers propose that workers in building trades accept a reduction in wages to promote building. They think a "temporary" reduction in wages, accompanying lower prices of building materials, would help to overcome unemployment.

EVERYBODY KNOWS that reducing wages, generally speaking, means to prolong the depression. Resumption of business depends on buying power. Lower wages mean less money to spend.

On the other hand, lower wages might be better than no wages. And incidentally many union men, by private individual agreement, are working far below the former union rate.

It is a difficult question. Many unions might be willing to make temporary concessions in the general interest, but they feel that if wages were reduced now, a long fight might be necessary to bring them back.

MINERS' STRIKE SPREAD SEEN

Mine union officials here today predicted that within a few days there will be a gradual spread of the coal miners' strike throughout the Western Pennsylvania coal fields.

At the same time it was said that about 1,300 Washington County miners are out, and that plans have been made for the calling out of workers in fields in other counties.

The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation and the Carnegie Coal Company, among others, said that they were puzzled by the strike, as no demands had been made on them by their miners.

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America at New Kensington last night, said the men had not gone to the companies because the companies ignored them previously. He declared:

"The companies know there is starvation in every camp they have."

Admits Shooting 3 Policemen, But Says Plan to Slay Premier Was Abandoned

ROME, May 28.—(AP.)—Michele Schirru, the first American citizen ever arraigned before a special tribunal for defense of the state, went on trial today charged with plotting the assassination of Premier Mussolini.

He admitted a secondary charge of secreting arms and shooting three policemen, but he said he had abandoned a plan to attack the premier and had been on the point of leaving the country when he was arrested last February.

They took him out of the steel cage where defendants are kept and made him re-enact the shooting of the three policemen at the time of his arrest. He had no pistol, but the pantomime was so realistic that a policeman seized the defendant by the hair and jerked him back violently at one point in the narrative.

Schirru, who testified for about an hour, told of his naturalization in the United States and of his connection with European anarchist groups. He had intended to kill Mussolini, he said, because he believed that when the premier fell Fascism also would go and Italy would be free.

HELEN'S EXILE GRIEVES SON

LONDON, May 28.—(AP.)—Queen Helen of Rumania is represented as being reconciled to the bitter fact that she soon must leave her adopted country and her 9-year-old son, Crown Prince Michael, while the former boy-king himself is grief-stricken.

She is quoted by an Englishwoman friend here as having said recently in Bucharest that she probably would go into voluntary exile in France or Italy as soon as the new Rumanian Parliament is convened. She said:

"No choice is left me, as between humiliation and departure. My life has been a sad one for years and now I shall live the life of a recluse.

"My dear boy Michael was unconsolable when I told him what my life is to be. I never saw despair written more deeply on the face of a child."

AIR TOUR FLEET COMING HERE

The National Air Tour, 41 planes strong, will visit Pittsburgh the second week in July, the Aero Club, which is sponsoring the visit, announced today.

The ships will land at Rodgers Field. Plans to use the new municipal field were dropped when it was learned that field will not be ready, although C. W. Forcier, the manager, told the County Commissioners a week ago the field could be used for limited flying in 60 days.

Three autogyros will be among the visiting planes. There will be stunt and speed flying and aerial maneuvers. The planes will be here for five hours.

Coolidge Sees Immense Foreign Trade Prospects

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 28.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The National Foreign Trade Council now in session in New York emphasizes the important place that international commerce holds in the world. It embraces nearly all the important elements of agriculture, industry, transportation and finance. A surprisingly large number of the essentials of our daily life are of foreign production and our own goods are found in every corner of the globe.

Mr. Coolidge

The basis of all trade is an exchange of materials and services. The important function of the council is to discover and advise our merchants how and where such exchange most advantageously can be made.

It is only in the last 20 years that we have had a country-wide organization reinforced by extensive governmental agencies for the promotion of foreign trade. Our phenomenal success came from being informed concerning the needs of other people and being able to supply them in a satisfactory manner at satisfactory prices.

The permanent foundation for trade lies in service. So long as we benefit people with our goods we can expect to supply them. Since only about 10 per cent of world population has reached the higher standards of consumption, the opportunity for world progress through foreign trade is boundless. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

BOY DROWNS AS CHUM'S VALIANT RESCUE EFFORT FAILS

SCHOOLMATES SEE LAD DIE IN RIVER

Regis Lentz' seat in the fourth grade of St. George's Parochial School was vacant today.

Regis, 11, of 11000 Arlington avenue, and five other boys, went to the Monongahela River, near the foot of South Fourth street, after school yesterday. The Lentz boy and one of his classmates, Francis Vigland, 11, of 18 Arlington avenue, disrobed and boarded a raft.

Regis, 11

As it drifted slowly down stream, Regis dived in to swim to shore. He had taken put a few strokes when he screamed for help. Francis, seeing the plight of his chum, plunged into the river and made a valiant attempt to save him, but his grasp was too weak and Regis sank, according to the version given police by the other boys. Police recovered the body a few hours later.

James Stenson, 12, a cousin of the victim, of 44 Hartford street, who was in the party, picked up the drowned boy's clothing and took it to the latter's home, informing his parents of the drowning.

Young Vigland, fearing a scolding, said nothing of the tragedy to his mother until hours later when she learned of it from neighbors.

2 BALLOONISTS FOUND SAFE

word came through of the scientists' safety. Searching parties, unaware of the events that transpired during the night, located the deserted balloon this morning.

Seeing no sign of life, the searchers jumped to the conclusion Piccard and Kipfer were still imprisoned in the gondola, either unconscious or dead. Those engaged in the search never dreamed that the explorers had landed safely and with the self-reliance characteristic of men of their stamp, started out to battle their way down the slippery slopes of a glacier to civilization.

Piccard and Kipfer left Augsburg, Bavaria, at 3:57 a. m. yesterday. The giant balloon shot up almost immediately to a tremendous height, veered to the southwest and was soon lost to view.

AT MERCY OF WINDS

At intervals during the day, the craft was reported from various places in Austria, Germany and Italy. It drifted to Friendrichshafen, over Lake Constance, and then back east to Oberammergau and Garmisoh-Partenkirchen.

At the mercy of the winds, the balloon was wafted southward heading for Tyrol and the menace of disaster on mountain peaks.

During the latter part of the flight, the balloon seemed suspended in a motionless, windless layer of air. A steady altitude of between 12,000 and 15,000 feet seemed to be maintained, leading experts to fear that death would end the gallant adventure, as the craft's oxygen supply was sufficient for only 12 hours and that altitude was felt to be too high to permit the introduction of natural air inside the hermetically sealed gondola.

Prof. Piccard's claim of complete victory in his ascent to the skies confounded the views of experts, few of whom believed the balloon had reached the stratosphere, although at one time during the journey it passed completely out of the range of vision.

TALKS TO WIFE

The two air explorers were met by a searching party consisting of Franz Faulkner, the village schoolmaster of Obergurgl, and two other villagers. Piccard and Kipfer were somewhat tired and exceedingly hungry and they fell with relish upon the store of bread, bacon and tea which the searchers carried.

Piccard's first thought was of his wife. He asked Faulkner to go ahead and cable Mme. Piccard at Brussels as speedily as possible. When the professor himself reached Obergurgl, he put in a long distance call to his wife. He told her he needed a rest and planned to stay in Tyrol for a time to recover his stranded ballon and check up his scientific instruments.

GHOSTS STALK LEAGUE DOPE CONFERENCE

By WINIFRED BLACK

(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

GENEVA, May 28.—There were ghosts in the great airy room where the International Narcotic Conference of the League of Nations opened yesterday.

I wonder how a good many of the delegates felt in the presence of the unseen visitors?

Some of the delegates looked as if they were aware of the visitors.

Others looked as if they didn't quite know what it was all about—this talk of the drug ring, the drug slaves and the whole terrible menace of dope.

An interesting group of people—these delegates.

BELGIAN OPENS SESSION

When Senator Louis de Brouckere, of Belgium, rose to make his opening address as president, he looked as if he carried the blessing of a noble cause.

Benign, kindly, bearded like a patron saint of childhood Brouckere made a good speech.

But through it all were the ghosts in the council chamber, pale ghosts with eyes of agony, ghosts of slaves held in cruel bondage year in and year out by the terrible narcotic evil.

I wonder if this conference will really help to lay those pitiful ghosts?

JUDGE UPHOLDS KIRKLAND TERM

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 28.—(AP.)—Judge Grant Crumpacker sturdily affirmed his opinion today that the one-to-ten-year sentence he passed on Virgil Kirkland of Gary, was correct.

The Indiana Supreme Court decision cited yesterday by Attorney General James M. Ogden as proof that the court's sentence was in error did not apply in the Kirkland case, Judge Crumpacker said. He sent the 20-year-old Gary youth to the Pendleton Reformatory upon conviction of assault and battery in the death of Arlene Draves, his companion at a drinking party last November.

TORNADO LIFTS TRAIN OFF RAILS

FARGO, N. D., May 28.—(AP.)—Dashing along at a 50-mile an hour clip, the crack Great Northern Empire Builder, coast train deluxe, eastbound from Seattle to Chicago, was picked up like a toy from its tracks and wrecked by a tornado eight miles southeast of here late yesterday. One life was lost, more than a score injured, one probably fatally, and scores of passengers shaken up by the freak accident.

FLIERS BREAK NON-REFUEL RECORD

International News Service.

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., May 28.—Walter Lees and Frederic Brossy, Detroit fliers, broke the world's record for non-refueling endurance flight at 12:10 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) today.

Lees and Brossy remained in the air after passing the record. Officials said they had enough fuel oil to keep the Packard Diesel motor running 14 hours longer.

The fliers at 12:10 completed 76 hours, 23 minutes in the air, exactly one hour longer than the former record of 75 hours, 23 minutes, established by two French fliers. Rules of the National Aeronautical Association require an extra hour in the air to establish an official record.

The Detroit airmen succeeded on their third attempt at the record. On two previous trials they were defeated by bad weather. On the second attempt they were only three hours from the record when forced to land.

They took off on the third trial at 7:47 a. m. Monday and were encouraged by beautiful weather throughout the attempt with the exception of two hours Wednesday when a stiff squall blew up from the northwest and buffeted the Bellanca monoplane.

Notes dropped daily said the airmen were sleeping regularly and that they felt in great condition. They prepared their meals on a small stove in the monoplane.

Weather Conditions.

A high pressure area occupies the Atlantic Coast states, and the skies are clear with moderate temperature. Relatively low pressure stretches from north of the lakes southwestward over the Mississippi Valley states, producing much cloudiness over that section with showers and thunderstorms. The rainfall for the last 24 hours was light, but was rather general over the Upper Mississippi Valley, the plains states and the Rocky Mountain states. The weather is warm over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region, but cool weather prevails again over the plains and westward over the Rocky Mountains.

PANIC AVERTED AMONG PUPILS

Excitement was stilled by the coolness of Supt. of Schools N. L. Glasser and Donald M. Glossner, member of the faculty, at the eighth grade promotion exercises in Carnegie Library Hall, Carnegie, last night. Just as they were presenting the diplomas to the 140 members of the class, odors of smoke permeated the crowded auditorium.

Many arose and started for the exits, but Supt. Glasser waved for silence, while he and Glossner urged everyone to be seated.

Glasser explained that a motor, operating a fan, had blown out and that there was neither fire, nor danger. The audience was quickly calmed and the exercises went on. In the class, 93 had perfect attendance records for the year and 16 for five years or more. Audrey Chilton was first honor pupil and Delores Stinner, second.

SHERIFF HURT WHEN 23 TRY JAIL BREAK

Youngstown Prisoners Retire After Two of Ringleaders Are Injured in Battle

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 28.—Sheriff Adam Stone, of Mahoning County, and two prisoners were injured here today when 23 men, awaiting grand jury action, attempted a break from the first-floor cell block of Mahoning County jail. Stone was hit over the head with a blackjack made of soap wrapped in twine.

The attempted break occurred when eight men wrecked the door to the sheriff's office and stormed in upon Stone. With him at the time were Deputy Sheriff Leslie Parker and two Erie Railroad officers. A general fight ensued when Parker opened fire. No one was hit.

With two of the eight ringleaders incapacitated, they retired to the cell-block. The prisoners were quieted and confined to their cells.

Among the eight who rushed the sheriff was Francis Tornes, arrested recently for automobile theft in North East, Pa., after battling a sheriff's posse. He is also said to have attempted to set fire to the Erie (Pa.) jail.

PURIFY CHURCH, CLOSING PLEA OF DR. KERR

Tells It to Solve Problem Of Good Will Within Its Own Fellowship First

The coming of the living God is not contingent upon the purification of politics, but on the purification of the church, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr said today in his last sermon as moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States in Syria Mosque.

He added:

"The mountains of bigotry and ignorance, the valleys of indecision and apathy, the crooked places of controversy and insincerity are within the church."

Dr. Kerr said the church must get rid of its secular spirit before it can challenge secular society. He continued:

"Let Christians practice meekness and lowliness of heart and secularism out in the world will be put to shame. Let the church solve the problem of good will within its own fellowship and then it will speak with authority concerning social and racial rivalries. Let the church find and maintain the secret of peace within its own fellowship and then it can speak with authority on the cruel waste of war."

Declaring that the spirit of the day is a liquidation of religious beliefs, Dr. Kerr said:

"We have substituted relativity for reality; psychology for prayer; an inferiority complex for sin; social control for family worship; autosuggestion for conversion; reflex action for revelation; astronomical intimidation for fear of God; and the spirit of the wheels for the power of the spirit."

PRESBYTERIANS OPEN SESSIONS

LONE CANDIDATE

So far there has been but one candidate mentioned for this position. He is the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, stated clerk of the general assembly. Dr. Mudge's name has been before the church for several weeks and it is considerably probably that he will be the selection when the commissioners vote this afternoon.

The assembly was opened with a scripture reading by the Rev. Dr. James A. Kelso, president of the Western Theological Seminary of Pittsburgh, followed by prayer by the Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Speaking on "The Church of the Living God," Moderator Kerr delivered his annual sermon and then officiated at the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

A feature of the afternoon session will be the moderator's reception of the officers and commissioners of the General Assembly. This will follow the close of the initial business meeting and will be held in Syria Mosque.

Dr. Kerr will preside at a popular meeting for the Presbyterian young people under the auspices of the Co-operative Council on young people's work this evening in Syria Mosque. Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, president of Marysville College, Maryland, will be the principal speaker. A musical program will be given by the Westminster choir of the Homestead church.

REPORT ATTACKED

An indication that any attempt to inject the subject of birth control as one of the major issues of the General Assembly will be vigorously opposed, was given during the closing pre-assembly conference on evangelism by Dr. Macartney in the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Macartney attacked the report of the Special Commission on Marriage, Divorce and Remarriage which is to be brought to the floor of the assembly on Monday as "un-Christian" and a "denial of the truth of God."

Other speakers were: The Rev. William L. Young, of the Board of Christian Education; President Lloyd, of Marysville College, and the Rev. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee of the Board of Foreign Missions.

The City Church Extension Council, in session in the Keystone Athletic Club since Tuesday, closed its meeting yesterday.

A number of board conferences, including National Missions, Foreign Missions, Christian Education and Pensions, were held during the afternoon.

Meat Dispensation Here Held Unlikely

CHICAGO, May 28.—(AP.)—George Cardinal Mundelein issued a dispensation yesterday sanctioning the eating of meat by Roman Catholics in the Chicago diocese Saturday, which is Memorial Day and also an ember day when fasting ordinarily is required.

The Rev. J. D. Hannon, secretary to Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, said today that he considered it unlikely a similar dispensation would be issued by the Pittsburgh Diocese. Decoration Day fell on Friday in 1930, and the Bishop refused to grant a dispensation then, Father Hannon said, as being contrary to his policy.

PUPILS SMASH 19 WINDOWS

Springdale school authorities today were investigating the breaking of 19 windows in a portable school, adjoining the high school.

According to W. A. Haas, president of the school board, they were broken following a parade by junior class students last night. Banners worded "We Want Welsh," were displayed in the parade which was headed by the Springdale Volunteer Firemen's Band.

Ousting of George T. Welsh, professor of history, by the school board and the intended presentation of a set of golf clubs to him by the senior class precipitated the controversy.

The clubs were purchased with money from the class treasury.

As a result Principal Lloyd S. Marshall informed the class he would not issue its diplomas until an accounting was made to show if enough money remained to pay the class' debts.

The accounting yesterday showed there was.

BIRTH CONTROL CHAMPIONED BY WOMAN

First of Sex to Be Named Assembly Commissioner Outlines Stand on Issue

From out of the Far West today came the first woman commissioner to a General Assembly of the Presbyterian church to champion birth control.

A mother of four children, Mrs. Mina L. Silliman, of Greenriver, Utah, whose spare time is occupied in raising between 500 and 1,000 turkeys, today said:

Mrs. Silliman

"My opinion is that birth control is right so long as it means the safeguarding of a physically deficient wife's health, or the supression of the birth of physically and intellectually unfit beings, but entirely wrong if it means the shirking of the responsibility of parenthood by the intellectually and physically superior.

"Under present laws, the knowledge of birth control is everywhere available to the well-to-do and intelligent, who need it very little, and kept from the great mass of people who could be classed as eugenically inferior. To put it crudely, it would be better if the law should compel the unfit and underprivileged to practice birth control, and not permit it to be practiced by the fit."

Referring to the report of the Special Commission on Marriage, Divorce and Remarriage, sponsoring birth control, which will be presented before the General Assembly in Syria Mosque on Monday, Mrs. Silliman said:

"This is a challenge to the best brain power of the church to look ahead 20 years and formulate a definite and positive dictum. The suppression of the unfit is a minor matter beside the raising of morally, intellectually and physically fit human beings. To place the emphasis on the negative side is simply to fog the issue."

King Hussein, Aide Of Lawrence, Ill

JERUSALEM, May 28.—(AP.)—Reports today from Amman said ex-King Hussein, of the Hedjaz, who figured in Lawrence of Arabia's revolt against Turkey, was seriously ill again. Last November the former king was erroneously reported to have died in exile.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, May 28.

THE GREAT Music Lover, reports Oliver Mackey, walked slowly up West Forty-second street. Tall, very thin and possessing a hawk-like nose, his hands were plunged deep in his pockets and his gaze ran parallel with his worn shoes. No doubt about it, the Music Lover was a rather forlorn figure. Yet people heard him humming softly as they passed.

Near Broadway, before a store that displayed numerous musical instruments, he stopped. His eyes looked with longing upon the tempting display. He nodded to a violin as though it were an old friend. He did all but tip his hat to a bass fiddle. Suddenly, he stepped back and gave an angry cry. A small placard met his eyes.

"Caruso Records," it read. "Only Twenty-five Cents!"

On the loud speaker directly over the store entrance, one of these Caruso records was being played. The Music Lover stepped back and listened.

The Music Lover clenched and unclenched his fists. He was obviously laboring under a deep emotional strain. Another Caruso record was sent over the loud speaker. And the Great Music Lover kept muttering to himself.

"Bah," he said over and over.

The proprietor of the store suddenly appeared in the doorway. He appeared to be taking a deep breath of the variety of fresh air we get on Forty-second street. Actually, however, he was there to take a good look at this stranger.

The Music Lover saw him. He wheeled rapidly.

"Bah!" he cried loudly. "This world is mad. Mad, I tell you!"

The proprietor gulped. He looked longingly in the direction of the traffic cop on the corner. He wondered just what type of maniac this was; harmless or violent.

"Oh, come now," he asserted nervously. "It isn't as bad as all that."

The Great Music Lover stood erect. His eyes were blazing.

"I say it is," he insisted imperiously. "You think I'm insane, don't you? Well, I am—but not in the usual manner. I'm insane over music. I am the Great Music Lover!"

The proprietor started back.

"Not the Great Music Lover?"

"The very same," nodded the other. "And now you will begin to understand why I have been carrying on so strangely in front of your store. Look at that sign in your window—'Caruso Records Only 25 Cents'!"

"Poor Caruso," he emoted. "When he was alive, his voice was revered by the multitudes. His golden songs will live forever in the memories of those who were fortunate enough to hear him.

"But now what do I find? I pass your store and see that glorious voice advertised for idiots! They buy Caruso as they might purchase a bag of candy.

"Twenty-five cents worth of Caruso. God, how it hurts my heart to find his memory despoiled in this fashion!"

The proprietor stepped back. Tears welled in his eyes. He clasped the hand of the Great Music Lover and pumped it vigorously.

"You are right," he sobbed. "You have made me see the light."

He rushed into the store and snatched the placard from the window. In a frenzy, he tore it to bits. He walked hurriedly to his desk and made out a new placard. He placed the sign in the window.

"Caruso Records," read the new sign. Only 50 Cents!" . . .

"YOU CAN believe it or not," scribbles J. S., "but I just heard the story of the dumbest cab driver in the world. It was his first day on the job and he pulled up his car in front of a spot where some 300 men were standing.

"He waited there two hours before he found out it was a breadline!" . . .

THE TWO chorines had been arguing ever since the show arrived in New York.

"I met Joe Doakes, the director, this afternoon," said the first one. "What a stupid fool he is."

The second damsel slapped some powder on her nose.

"Yeah?" she observed. "He must have told you that you still looked young."

The first one yawned.

"No, dearie," she retorted, "he said you did!" . . .

"DEAR Mr. Hellinger," writes Anthony Scelfo. "In reading one of your recent columns I found a letter written by Mitzi M. She wanted to know why they made powdered sugar, and not powdered salt.

"Well, Mitzi, your question wasn't asinine. A question of that type is usually given as an intelligence test. The answer is due to two factors. (1) The salt contains an impurity known as magnesium chloride, a substance which is very deliquescent. That is to say, it absorbs moisture from the air. (2) Salt is very soluble in water.

"It is due to these factors that our table salt 'cakes.' If the salt was powdered, it would be easier for the water which is absorbed from the atmosphere by the magnesium chloride to 'cake' our salt to a great extent. That is why salt is not powdered."

Thank you very much, Mr. Scelfo. Your letter is so perfectly clear and simple that I'm sure Mitzi must be kicking herself all over the place by this time for not knowing the answer in the first place. . . .

AL CAPONE being the King of the Underworld, Al Klein wants to know if it wouldn't be proper to refer to his right-hand man as the Crime Minister? . . .

"WELL," murmurs Dave Murray, "the gangsters can't seem to kill Jack Diamond with bullets. But if they'll only get a few more pounds of lead into him, they can push him off the dock and he'll drown!" . . .

Smart Summer Simplicity

By ANNE ADAMS

If you look your best in colorful, sheer frocks that are essentially feminine, then this is one to add to your wardrobe. And if you've a not-too-slim figure, the narrow panel from neck to skirt flare and the hip-yokes will work wonders with it. Sleeves are replaced again this season by graceful capelets of various styles, but none more flattering and slimming than these, so smartly designed to form the bodice panel. Pattern 1992 makes up beautifully in chiffon, georgette, voile, lace, etc.

Obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material for sleeveless dress. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

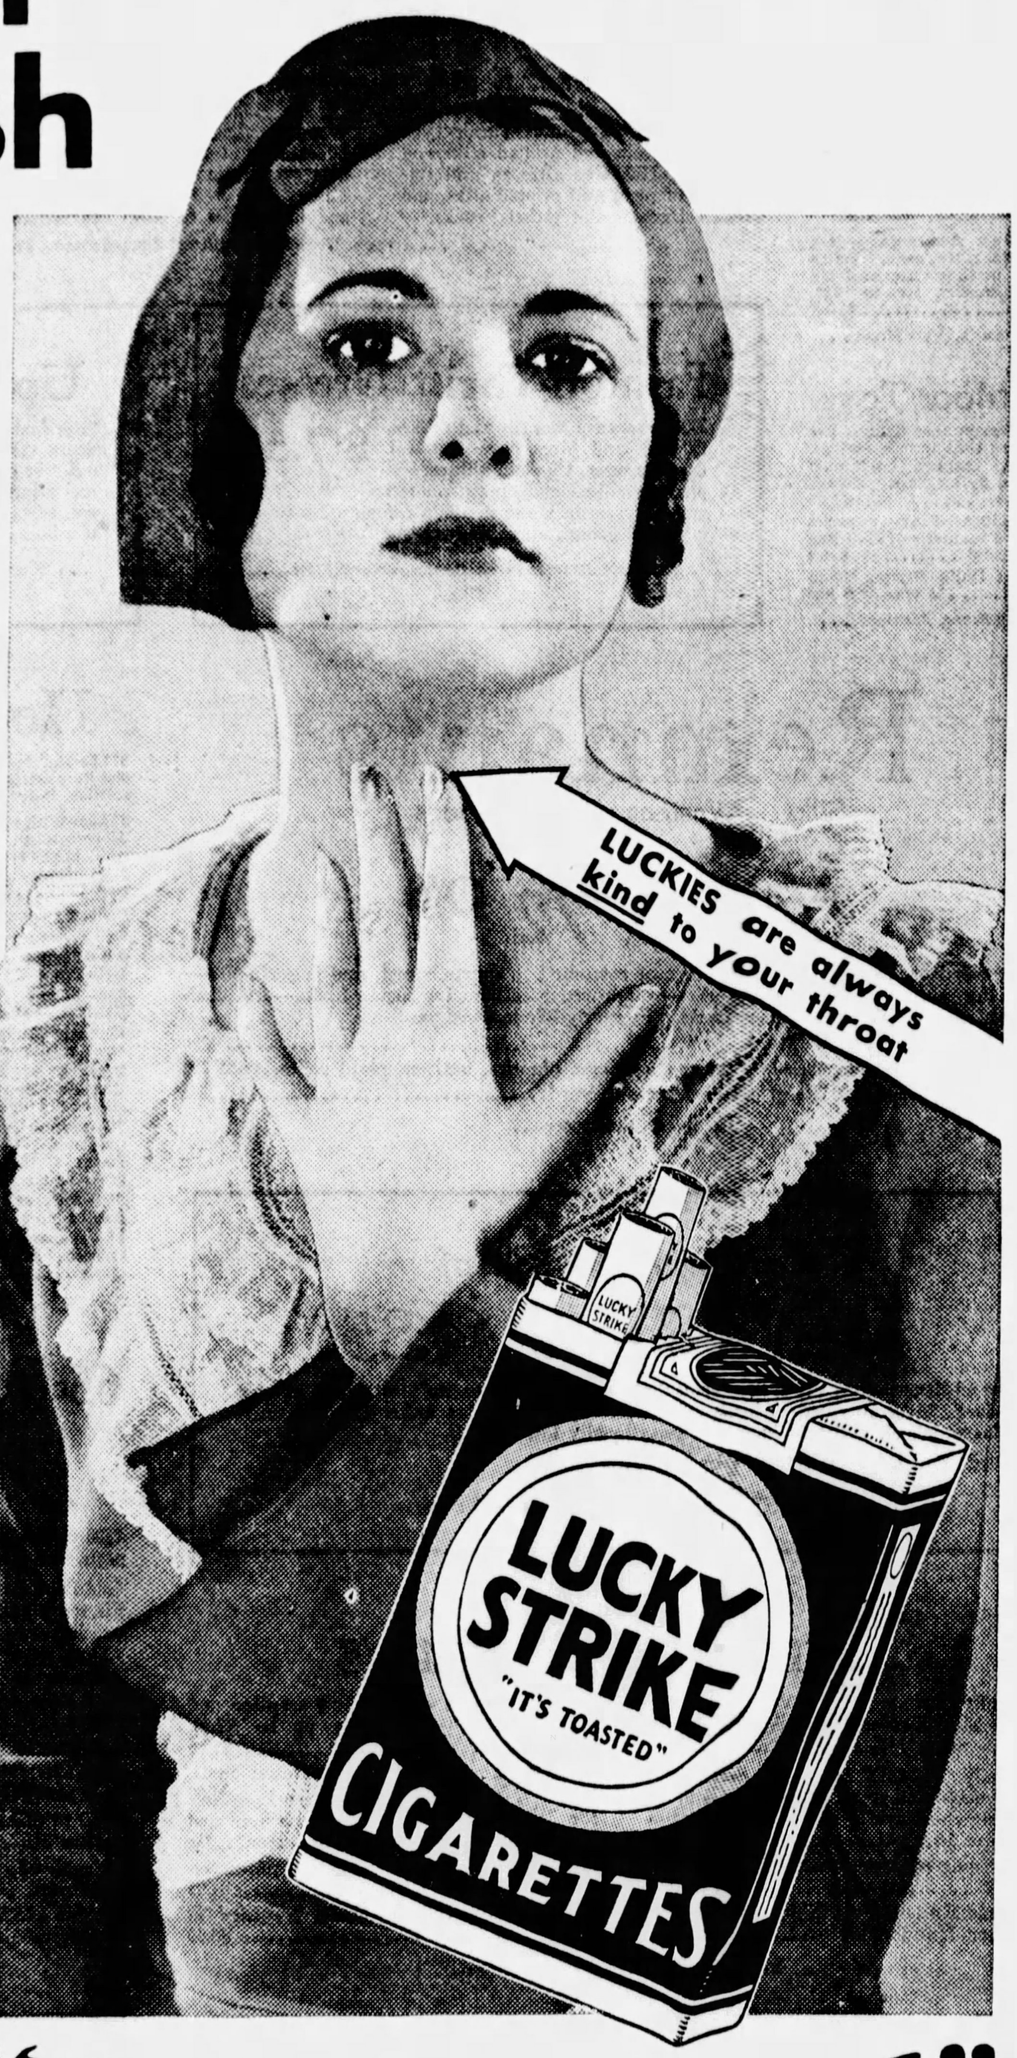
Consider your Adam's Apple!!*

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD"



Eve started it and the daughters of Eve inherited it. Eve gave Adam the apple, and it seems that Adam must have passed it on. For every man and every woman has an Adam's Apple. Put your finger on your Adam's Apple—that is your larynx, your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. Consider your Adam's Apple—when you do so, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Don't Talk to Your Food

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Having retired from the after-dinner speaking racket, in order to devote ourselves to late breakfasts and our daily work, we feel free to defend the dubious profession.

It is true that we demanded $1,000 to speak in a Middle Western state. But that fee wasn't for talking. We claim that it is only worth $10 to hear us speak.

Ninety dollars was for train fare. And the other 900 was for being forced to listen to the other graduates of the Hip and Elbow School of Oratory.

Guests forget that your professional speaker doesn't come in with the salad. He has probably been traveling night and day in a box car. When he gets there he is exhausted and 10 minutes after he has the listeners in the same condition.

Personally, we would like to see a law prohibiting speaking at dinners. It is much more educational to scoff in a one-arm lunch and listen to the oysters purring gently in your stew.

But, for some minimum reason, all organizations think they must have an out-of-town spieler at their annual affairs. Which is foolishness on the rebound.

If a man has done something gigantic like Lindbergh, we concede that it is worth listening to him. But the average after-dinner speaker is just an intellectual hokie who doesn't like home cooking. He's a vagabond in a tuxedo.

Say, it's worth a grand to meet the reception committee on a cold railroad platform in the dawn. There's always five on the committee.

Three of the commish wanted you. The other two are set dead agin you. The only reason for you there is because the three have mortgages on the other two's houses.

The two insurgents don't want you and they let you know it. You can tell by the greetings. You wouldn't think a man could get so much venom into a handshake with mittens on.

We were never much good at it anyway. Never having done anything historic and being more destructive than constructive we think it best for all that we retired.

Twenty years of forcible feeding is enough for any man. The effect on the nervous system is beautiful. From now on we are going to preserve a strict silence at all dinners. Especially when the waiter arrives with the check for same.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Would You Tolerate an Unfaithful Husband?

Should a Sensible Wife smile and "play dumb" when the Big Boy plays around with Other Ladies?

Phillipa thought she should. "Why not?" she argued. "Take me now. I know that my husband is unfaithful . . . but I have a good home . . . security . . . why should I throw them away and shove myself out in the cold by making a fuss?"

Maybe you agreed with her. Ethyl does—but for a different reason. Phillipa believed in sticking by an unfaithful husband for comfort and cold cash. But Ethyl says it's a case of love—and "men are only Big, Irresponsible Babies anyway."

"I was startled when I read Phillipa's letter," she admits, "but I have decided that she's right. After all, if her husband didn't love her he would leave her, wouldn't he?

"My problem is just like hers. My husband steps out, too . . . and I haven't known what to do about it. We are both young—in the early twenties—but still I think as Phillipa does.

"A man, to my way of thinking, likes to think he is a Lady Killer. I don't think he ever stops to think of the pain and misery he is causing his wife when he plays around.

"The divorce court is impossible for many reasons. And anyway, if you love your man, you can be big enough to let a few errors go by. After all, we don't live so long, and we might just as well make the best of it and be with the man we love.

Reader Disapproves

"So my hat is off to Phillipa. She is a girl who uses her head to think with. I am for her!"

So that's your story, sister! Well, every girl to her taste! But why any spunky, self-respecting female should wish to stick to a man she admits is vain, selfish, heartless, stupid and utterly unreliable, is beyond my comprehension. However, some janes will certainly stand for a lot to escape work . . . and call it love!

Which isn't half what I'd like to say to ladies like you—Phillipa and Ethyl. But I'll let Ralpha do it for me. There's a girl who knows her Webster and doesn't mind using it on Mooching Mammas.

"What a nauseating letter that one from Phillipa was!" she cries. "I threw the paper down in disgust when I read it . . . But it haunts me. I just can't help telling her what I think of her. She would probably be horrified if she were accused of using a desecrated marriage contract as a meal-ticket.

Living Over Volcano

"I have concluded that she is just too lazy to get out and shift for herself—probably too lazy to have kept up with her husband's interests or kept herself attractive. Of course he may be a moron. She says he spends his time with young girls. So he is, perhaps, the type that nothing can be done with—or for. In that case the only way an honest woman can keep her self-respect is to leave him, pronto.

"She lives in the security of being provided for; does she? Like ducks she does! I've seen too many philandering husbands snatched by young women too lazy to make an honest living. As a matter of fact, she is living over a volcano. And aside from the fact that her position is by no means secure, how does she salve her self-respect? If I were her, I'd take inventory. If that bozo is worth salvaging, I'd get busy and make myself so attractive that he'd want to stick around. If not, I'd pack up, get out and go to work.

"And if I were her, I wouldn't have the gall to advise other women to sell themselves as she is doing."

Strong words! Do you believe them? Or are you for Ethyl—and blinders?

WHY DID YOU BREAK YOUR ENGAGEMENT?
OH—HE'LL NEVER AMOUNT TO ANYTHING!
SHE COULD HAVE MADE A MUCH BETTER MARRIAGE!
MOST OF THOSE BOYS I THOUGHT WERE SUCH SAPS HAVE BECOME VERY SUCCESSFUL
FAY KING

By FAY KING

"Always a bridesmaid but never a bride——"

And for no more serious reason than the fact that she was too romantic—too ambitious—too particular.

She never envied any of her friends who were being married, for the man they were marrying never appealed to her in the least.

He was never the type she would marry.

So one by one she saw her friends all married off to these "saps" and "bores" and "ne'er-do-wells" she wouldn't have, while she looked in vain for her ideal.

She is still looking for him.

Her friends are all happily settled in life, and to her amazement the men they married have turned out to be just the sort of successful men she would have married.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Edith's Gloating Over Gift Is Short-Lived.

As I turned from the telephone after telling Edith—with apparent cordiality which cost me dear—that I would call Dicky, I saw that her message was no surprise to the group gathered in the basement playroom. There are some voices so pitched as to be audible, especially under stress, at a distance of several feet from the receiver of the telephone at the other end of the line. Edith's is one of these, and though the faces turned to me were controlled, I could see by Dicky's perturbed eyes and Harry Underwood's dancing ones, that they, at any rate, had heard Edith's patiently excited voice asking Dicky to "toddle to the telephone," that she wanted to thank him "for the most gorgeous Christmas gift."

"It's Ede, Dicky," I said lightly. "She wishes to speak to you."

He walked to the telephone, and, familiar with every line of his figure, every faintest gesture, I surmised that if at that instant he could have transported Edith to a place where she never could take down a telephone receiver again, he would not have hesitated to pronounce sentence of banishment upon her.

Involuntarily, I looked at Mr. Veritzen, still standing by the miniature platform where I had left him when the telephone rang. I was thankful that he did not see me, for the "cat and canary" expression which was in his eyes as he watched Dicky gave me a sudden revulsion of feeling. He so patently shared my feeling concerning the opportunes of the telephone message, that for a flaming second I was savagely glad Dicky had smashed his gift. Then my sense of justice asserted itself, and I tried to look at the whole situation dispassionately and as it must appear to those "best friends" of Dicky and me, the Underwoods. We heard her plainly answer Dicky's "hello, there!" with a gurgling "Oh! Dicky darling, I've just opened this—" and then we heard no more, for he spoke rapidly and emphatically:—

"Oh! yes, yes. Glad you like it. But it's nothing to rave over, just a part recognition of the way you've worked over the magazine. I've been an awful slacker on the job, lately, as you've reminded me more than once. It's more an apology than a Christmas present. Please cut out the thank yous. Merry Christmas to you and all the rest of it. No, I haven't opened anything yet. I'll look for it. Thank you, anyway. Yes we are fairly busy, a houseful of dancing collegians, and the rest of us down in the basement, fixing up a playroom for the youngsters. I'll do that little thing. Good night."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Consult Doctor Before the Hay Fever Season

Many persons dread the summer months. They are the victims of hay fever.

Hay fever, or summer catarrh, originally received its name by reason of the extreme sensitivity of certain individuals to the pollen of hay and other grasses. These individuals, in addition to this particularly sensitivity, may be sensitive to other plant, animal and bacterial proteins.

Dr. Copeland

There is a similarity between this disease and the symptoms met by persons who are unpleasantly sensitive to certain foods. Foods, such as eggs, shellfish, strawberries and tomatoes, may produce severe disturbances in susceptible individuals.

Hay fever and other associated diseases are found, at times, to run in families. It is believed by some authorities to be a sort of hereditary affliction.

When exposed to the offending plant, there is at once a sensation of heat and fullness in the eyes. There are redness of the eyeballs and a discharge of tears. Smarting and itching of the eye are soon converted into inflammation, with free discharge of mucus and pus.

Irritation of the nose produces sneezing. This becomes extremely violent. There is general discomfort, and the patient is miserable indeed.

Within the past decade great advances have been made in the treatment and cure of hay fever and similar diseases. I refer to the "desensitization tests," which some day I shall undertake to describe in detail. Following these tests, an inoculation of serum is made.

This treatment demands a long and tedious procedure, but in many instances is most effective. It requires a good deal of patience on your part, but I recommend it as well worth your time and trouble.

There are occasional cases of hay fever and asthma that do not respond to treatment. For these relief can only be accomplished by change in climate and altitude. Needless to say, it is important to keep away from the particular pollen that precipitates the attacks.

If you are a sufferer from asthma, hay fever or rose fever, the time to consult your physician is before the annual season arrives.

Household Hints

When sonny's hair is just beginning to come in nicely, you can give him a splendid head treatment by rubbing equal quantities of olive and castor oil slightly warmed into his scalp before shampooing. It will greatly encourage the growth of that young hair.

Don't be afraid to thank people for the favors and kindnesses they show you. Remember, it is the only way in which they are repaid and it is very discouraging to the thoughtful person to never reap any word of appreciation. Speak right up with that "thank you."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Sluggish elimination on the part of the intestinal tract brings conditions that are favorable to blackheads and facial eruptions. Plenty of water should be taken every day to flush the kidneys. Wash the lungs with fresh air frequently. Aid the elimination of skin poisons by bathing every day with warm water, soap and a bath brush of firm bristles.

The nail file should be narrow, flexible and fine grained, so it will cut quickly. Start at the sides of the nail, work toward the tip, then file off the end. Square, stubby nails should not be pointed; an oval line is better. Be careful not to cut into the cuticle. Clean the nail eaves with an orange wood stick, then use a beveling file of emery.

VIOLET RETURNS AS FAVORITE COLOR FOR VIBRANT YOUTH

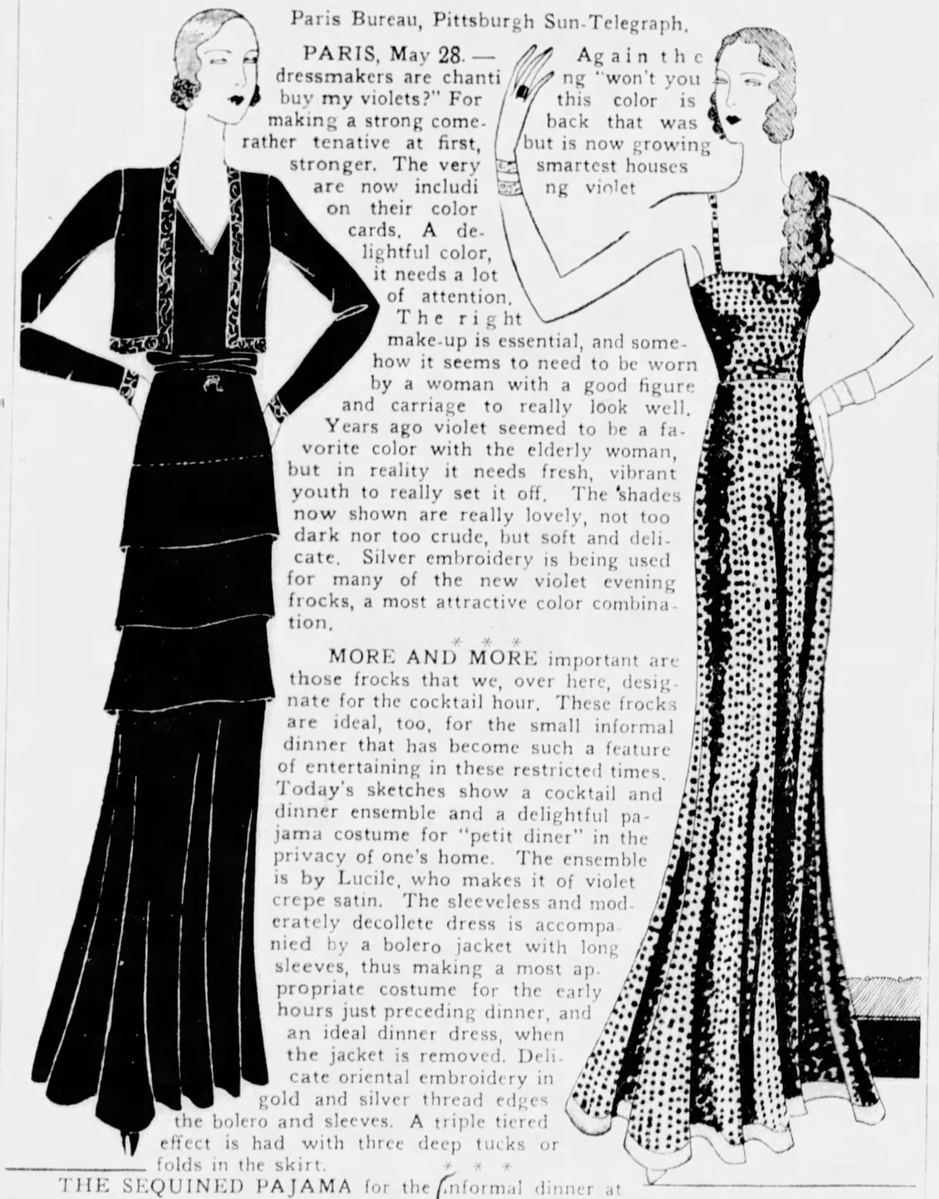
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, May 28.—Again the dressmakers are chanting "won't you buy my violets?" For this color is making a strong comeback that was rather tenative at first, but is now growing stronger. The very smartest houses are now including violet on their color cards. A delightful color, it needs a lot of attention. The right make-up is essential, and somehow it seems to need to be worn by a woman with a good figure and carriage to really look well. Years ago violet seemed to be a favorite color with the elderly woman, but in reality it needs fresh, vibrant youth to really set it off. The shades now shown are really lovely, not too dark nor too crude, but soft and delicate. Silver embroidery is being used for many of the new violet evening frocks, a most attractive color combination.

MORE AND MORE important are those frocks that we, over here, designate for the cocktail hour. These frocks are ideal, too, for the small informal dinner that has become such a feature of entertaining in these restricted times. Today's sketches show a cocktail and dinner ensemble and a delightful pajama costume for "petit diner" in the privacy of one's home. The ensemble is by Lucile, who makes it of violet crepe satin. The sleeveless and moderately decollete dress is accompanied by a bolero jacket with long sleeves, thus making a most appropriate costume for the early hours just preceding dinner, and an ideal dinner dress, when the jacket is removed. Delicate oriental embroidery in gold and silver thread edges the bolero and sleeves. A triple tiered effect is had with three deep tucks or folds in the skirt.

Kleenex Is Safe!

New, disposable tissues are used and destroyed . . . no laundering, economical!

PAUSE just one moment, please, to consider the ordinary handkerchief. It's often used again and again. It collects germs—and stores them in pockets, purses, laundry bags. Tests show a single handkerchief (used during colds) may contain millions of bacteria.

At last a better way has been found. Everywhere you see people using Kleenex — soft tissues which are destroyed immediately after use. Thus, hordes of disease-producing germs are destroyed, instead of being carried back again to mouth and nose.

Costs less than laundry

Kleenex is so low in cost that it actually costs less than laundering. Thus it is ideal for children; for use during colds and hay fever.

You'll find Kleenex at drug, dry goods and department stores, in packages at 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

FAMILY INTERFERENCE BLAMED FOR BOW-COOPER RIFT

Elinor Glyn Creates 'It' Girl Role for Rollicking Clara

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHAPTER X.

Clara acknowledged the introduction, but she felt no interest in the sly youth who blushed when she spoke to him and who so plainly showed his infatuation for her. She didn't give Gary a second thought until they played a love scene. He kissed her with a passion that caused her to look at him in surprise.

"You are beautiful," he whispered.

Gary, who had for months cherished a secret admiration for Clara, was suddenly given the chance to demonstrate his feeling. Those who were on the set at the time, said you would never suspect the shy Mr. Cooper of such depth of feeling.

Clara's romance with Gary started then and there. She became tremendously fond of him. Gilbert Roland, sulking in jealous rage, found new interests. Gilbert probably didn't know genuine love at the time. He was just a boy and his madness over Clara was the outpouring of immature youth.

Gary comes of a straight-laced family. His father was formerly a judge in Montana and he has watched over his boy with a devoted care. He had no wish to have Gary fall a victim to any of these Hollywood sirens. When Gary started staying out at night, the judge grew suspicious.

Gary in Love

"Where were you, boy?" he asked.

Gary, infatuated with Clara Bow, finally admitted that he was in love.

"Who is the girl?" asked the parent.

"Her name is Clara Bow," he replied, blushing to the roots of his hair at the mere mention of his lady love's name.

"Clara Bow!" thundered the Judge. "Isn't she the girl over whom young Savage tried to kill himself?"

"But father," protested Gary, "Clara is innocent. She didn't let him so much as touch her hand."

But both Gary's father and mother were convinced that Clara was only a Hollywood vamp and that the sooner they succeeded in breaking up his romance with Clara the better.

"It's late now, Gary," his mother would say, "You had better come home."

Tui Lorraine, who acted as Clara's companion, told me that Clara laughed the first few times when Gary had to go home, but after a time, she tired of too much family interference. Gary, too, was taciturn. He had little to say and Clara, who loved a good time with gaiety and lively conversation, decided that she and Gary were not meant for each other. They parted.

Admires Clara

Today if you ask Gary anything about Clara he will tell you that she is a fine girl, even at the risk of incurring the displeasure of Lupe Velez, his current fiancee.

All things come to an end eventually and so the unlucky 1926 passed out of Clara's life, leaving its mark it is true, but Clara did not let her troubles make her bitter. Later you will find she was just as gullible and just as trusting as if she had never been through those bitter experiences.

You would have thought that Clara would not have trusted Daisy De Voe, who was obviously out to get all that she could from her generous employer. You would have thought that she might have seen through Dr. William Earl Pearson's acceptance of the valuable gifts that she made him. But Clara, all her life, has shut her eyes to the faults of people she likes. Unless she is faced with the irrefutable proof she never believes that those whom she selects as her friends can do her any wrong.

An outstanding event of 1927 was Clara's meeting with Elinor Glyn, noted English novelist. Madam Glyn, whose novel of "Three Weeks" had made her famous as an exponent of love and sex, wrote a serial for the Cosmopolitan Magazine called "It." The word "it" went through the country like wild-fire. According to Mrs. Glyn, it was more than just sex attraction—it was that illusive something that attracts men to women and women to men. Those of us without Madam Glyn's flare for brevity contented ourselves with defining it as just common, ordinary, garden-variety sex appeal.

Becomes 'It' Girl

Perhaps I'm wrong in saying that "It" was the first of the sex plays to come to the screen, but, at any rate, when it was announced that Paramount had bought Madam Glyn's serial for Clara, the fan magazines and movie columns were full of the story of the red-haired Clara Bow, irrepressible flapper and delight of all the younger generation, being chosen to carry the message of "It" to the world.

The combination of the stately, aristocratic Madam Glyn and the vivacious, fun-loving Clara Bow was one that attracted world-wide attention. Madam Glyn did her best to make a lady of Clara.

"We understood each other," said the author, "because we both have red hair."

Clara at first accepted Madam Glyn as a necessary evil. Then she grew to like her. Never in her harum-scarum life had she had any woman of Elinor Glyn's intelligence and breeding show an interest in her. Madam Glyn, who gave the swankiest dinner parties in Hollywood, invited the "It" girl to meet her select friends. Clara, at first, tried to avoid going to these dinners. She was afraid she might be snubbed and Clara, let it be said, has never had social aspirations. She has always been bitterly conscious of her early poverty. She has always feared that perhaps people who knew of the tragedy of her childhood might not feel that she was their equal.

Hollywood Kind

Clara did not know of the kindness of the real people in Hollywood. She met at these dinner parties, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Marion Davies and the rest of the cream of the Hollywood social world. Instead of snubbing her, they gave her cordial welcome and expressed an interest in her and a hope that they might grow to know her better.

During the months of 1927, when Clara saw Madam Glyn almost daily, she bought herself new evening frocks, carefully supervised by her new friend.

Clara, who has always been quick to learn and intelligent, realized that Mrs. Glyn's world presented men and women who read books, who had traveled and who were able to talk about things other than just petty gossip and personalities.

Clara must have remembered the little girl who traveled on the train for the first time and who carried her luggage in a papier-mache suitcase. She must have thought that this Clara Bow had gone a long way from the poor little Brooklyn girl who visited every compartment and every drawing room on the train when she made the long trip from New York to California in company with Maxine Alton.

Primitive Child

Miss Alton says, in speaking of Clara:

"She was wild with excitement on that trip—eager to learn and desirous of knowing the things that make for culture. I had never met a child as primitive, as goodhearted and as lovable. I still have the contract which carries on the back the notation written by her father asking me to meet her at the information bureau at the Grand Central."

Mrs. Glyn loves Clara to this day.

"I felt for her," Mrs. Glyn told me, "a keen sympathy. I realized this child had been denied a mother's understanding. I knew that Mrs. Bow had been ill all through Clara's childhood and girlhood. I felt if she could have had a healthy mother who could have guided her, her life might have been different. Clara has so much that is beautiful in her nature, so much that is fine and everything that is real."

Clara, honest with herself and honest with the world, was then never to understand that certain people sought introductions to her only because she was a famous star. She has always been trusting and when she has found that people with whom she surrounded herself were unworthy, it has been a bitter blow.

For months, Clara worked with an ugly pain in her right side. The doctors diagnosed it as appendicitis. Finally, one day, her physician said he thought she ought to have her appendix out.

Clara Bow submits to an appendicitis operation and plunges pell-mell into another romance. In tomorrow's installment Miss Parsons describes the "It" girl's meeting with the dashing Dr. Pearson.

U. P. ASSEMBLY GIVEN REPORT ON UNION

4 Groups Voted Approval in 1930; Muskingum College Head Elected Moderator

By THE REV. JOHN E. SIMPSON

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 28.—Four groups of the Presbyterian and Reformed denominations took definite action toward unity at the annual meeting of their supreme judicatories in 1930, the committee on church unity reported today to the seventy-third general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in session here.

They are the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., the Reformed Church in America, the United Presbyterian Church of North America and the Presbyterian U. S. Committees representing these denominations met during the year with the Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, of Pittsburgh, as chairman. Six sub-committees have been working on the following: Doctrinal standards, the spiritual nature of the church, boards and agencies, the policy of the church, educational institutions and property rights.

The assembly organized last night by electing President J. Knox Montgomery, of Muskingum College, moderator, unanimously. Dr. W. E. McCulloch, of Los Angeles, Cal., former pastor of Homewood United Presyterian Church and an ex-moderator, made the nominating address.

Dr. Montgomery's election closed the evangelistic conference that preceded the assembly.

BETHEL DEPUTY PLAN OPPOSED

Bethel Township is a more law-abiding community than it was a year ago, according to witnesses who testified before Judge George V. Moore, against appointment of John Miskunas, 21, as deputy constable.

Judge Moore ordered the records of the justice of the peace be brought in Friday for both last year and this year, so he can determine whether the business has increased.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

Ladies! Listen in on KDKA on Friday mornings at 10:15 Daylight Saving Time for the Fayro Charm Period.

Remove EXCESS WEIGHT as Pleasantly as you put it on

Watch your bathroom scales record the loss of excess weight after every bath with Fayro, pure mineral salts which, when dissolved in hot water, duplicate the waters of world-famed health resorts. Relax in your own tub just before retiring and you will lose between two and four pounds during each bath.

In spite of its rapid action, there is absolutely nothing injurious in the Fayro formula. The mineral salts, of which it is compounded, invigorate and cleanse your skin in addition to opening your pores so that unneeded subsurface fat may disappear.

Hundreds of physicians and women from all parts of the United States have voluntarily written* to tell of the remarkable results they have obtained by the continued use of Fayro.

Dr. F., of New York City, writes, "Enclosed please find remittance for which you will send me Fayro Bath Salts for reducing on a clinical case. Results thus far have been excellent, and am favorably impressed."

"Some time ago I used Fayro and I will say I never saw anything do such splendid work. I lost twelve pounds but only used three boxes," writes Mrs. T., of Urbana, Ill.

You risk nothing in giving Fayro a trial. It is sold on the unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be instantly refunded. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee.

One dollar at drug and toilet counters everywhere.

* Write for copy of sworn statement before Notary Public that no testimonial for Fayro has ever been solicited or paid for in any way. Fayro, Inc., North Side, Pittsburgh.

Fayro Bath Salts

COX ATTACKS UTILITIES

Declaring it the duty of a priest to safeguard the rights of the people in all phases of life, the Rev. Dr. James R. Cox devoted his Question Hour over radio station KQV, last night, to answering a statement that a priest should not meddle in politics.

Father Cox pointed to charges that have been hurled at Pinchot that he is a Bolshevik and a second Mussolini as indications that the public utilities are trying to cover their transgressions by the use of invective.

"We are supposed to care for our sheep. In every age we have a different sort of wolf. In our day, it is the public utilities."

Proceeds are to be used in maintaining the exchange, Penn avenue a market place for the work of deserving women.

There were tables of children's clothes, of negligees, of candy, nuts and jelly, of hand-painted lamp shades and novelties.

Wilkinsburg Juniors Win $500 Art-in-Industry Contest Award

The unanimous award of the $500 prize to the Juniors of the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club, the unexpected presence of Mrs. John A. Frick, State Federation president, her announcement that Mrs. John M. Phillips has allowed her name to go on the ticket as first vice president of the Federation, and some suggestions for next year's work as Mrs. Phillips outlined them at the annual home department luncheon meeting, made yesterday quite the most important day at the art in industry exhibit in Kaufmann's auditorium.

The exhibit, by the way, is to be held again next year and instead of one award, there will be three prizes totaling $500, according to Irwin Wolf, of the Kaufmann organization, who made the award yesterday.

At the luncheon meeting both Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Frick spoke of the advisability of setting ahead the hour for young people's dances, Mrs. Phillips declaring that, owing to the late hours the children keep, parents have become the official night watchmen of the nation. A campaign against daylight-saving time in the interest of children and mothers, an attempt to ascertain what is going on in the schools with regard to religion, to revive there an interest in "the faith of our fathers" and to take active measures against Communism were among other tentative suggestions made by the retiring home department chairman who is also chairman of the art-industry contest.

Earlier Dances

In her brief talk Mrs. Frick brought an echo or two from the biennial council of the General Federation and then went on to speak of the work there is to be done by Pennsylvania clubwomen. One of the most important jobs women have before them, she said, is to create an attractive atmosphere in the home so that young people will want to stay there. After midnight, every young person should be in somebody's home, and not at a roadhouse or a hotel and dancing can be just as enjoyable from 8 until 12 as from 10 until 2. Mrs. Frick said in commenting on the movement to popularize early hours. Last night Mrs. Phillips entertained at dinner in the South Hills Country Club in honor of Mrs. Frick.

"The Art of Hospitality (11 o'clock) and "Sunday Night Suppers" (2:30 o'clock) are the two topics on which Miss Karen Fladoes is speaking today at the exhibit. This afternoon's program also features music, the choral of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club furnishing it.

The exhibit will close tomorrow and Miss Adelaide Hunter, of Kaufmann's, will speak on "Style On a Budget."

More than 3,000 persons have already visited the exhibit, visitors having come from the New England States and Canada.

BABY ROSE MARIE SIGNS FOR HERBERT MOVIE

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Baby Rose Marie, darling personality of radio and the stage, has signed to do a movie!

Apprized of the news in her dressing room at a downtown theater last night, she clapped her hands in glee, kissed her parents and dashed down the iron stairway two steps at a time to inform Dick Powell in his quarters.

"Guess what?" she hollered at Dick. "I'm going in the movies!"

The popular master of ceremonies joined in a jig and the event was duly celebrated.

As soon as Baby Rose Marie's engagement ends here tonight she turns to her home in East Orange, N. J., with her parents to await word from Hollywood. She will do vaudeville and radio appearances for the National Broadcasting Company in the meantime. Baby, you know, has a five-year contract with NBC.

TAKES FIVE ENCORES

Having dined with Rose Marie and played marbles with her in Dick Powell's dressing room, we have had the pleasure of becoming more intimately acquainted with the child than most people. All that the celebrities say of her is true . . . and more!

Not a bit spoiled, she is still a youngster though her ability on the stage rivals that of older and more experienced headliners. Last night she hung a shade on Sophie Tucker doing "Some of These Days." Dick Powell said the applause was the greatest he has heard in his career . . . and each of the five times that Rose Marie was called back for an encore she dashed into the wings for a short conference with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curley. You would never think it from out front. The girl has perfect composure when on the stage.

The way she did "Please Don't Talk About Me" and "Roll On Mississippi" reminded us of Ruth Etting, Belle Baker and Sophie Tucker wrapped up in one. Her father, formerly with George M. Cohan in "45 Minutes from Broadway," does not allow Rose Marie to imitate anybody. And in singing naturally she has great charm.

MAKES UP HERSELF

Fifteen minutes before curtain last night we watched Baby Rose Marie apply her own makeup with a miniature set of brushes.

The Pittsburgh audience, admittedly the most critical in the world—took her into their hearts like Grant took Richmond. Arthur Brisbane was right—Baby Rose Marie is the most precocious youngster her age and what anybody else can do, she can duplicate or break a larynx trying it.

Her originality is an outstanding characteristic. Her memory is another. We watched her memorize a popular song in 15 minutes at KDKA studios and sing it perfectly 10 minutes later!

Being a genuine little girl, her pet hobby is window shopping and hours after she has been out for a walk with a stage or radio celebrity she will tell her parents about something wonderful she saw "up street." Plenty of sunshine seems to have had a marvelous effect on her health.

NAMES DOLL "PATSY POWELL"

Amos 'n' Andy are among the celebrities she numbers as friends . . . and immediately after the show last night she scampered to KDKA studios to meet them. Rose Marie is in her third year at a professional school, but withal this knowledge and ability, she cares most for her doll room at home which will be enhanced tomorrow with Doll No. 107 named "Patsy Powell" after its donor.

Baby Rose Marie is the greatest "little pal" we have known . . . God bless her little soul!

'OKEY, BABY!'

DICK POWELL BABY ROSE MARIE

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 27.—Whenever Tin Pan Alley seems about to disappear from the American scene, with the radio playing the funeral march, good old moonlight invariably comes to the rescue.

Strange, the fascination of moonlight for those who write the nation's songs. It has furnished the inspiration for more songs than any other single phenomenon of life. Roses and rivers, Carolina and the old New England homestead all have had their troubadours, all receive frequent tribute in the song shops of Manhattan. But in the long run toward royalties and the ban they are, after all, of secondary importance.

It is moonlight that really sets the songwriters to work—and the payment of the landlord. It is moonlight that seems to stir them to their most melodious efforts, that keeps America sentimental despite all its pretentions to wise-cracking sophistication. A thousand forms of rhyming have been devoted to moonlight. Yet, there is always room for one more.

Harry Richman, one of the more successful of the Broadway minstrels, is the latest to enter the moonlight. He brings to it a modern conception of economy. He calls his hymn, "There Ought to Be a Moonlight Saving Time." Most people will agree with him.

The Alley will tell you that since radio achieved its houshold popularity the sale of sheet music has dropped from the hundred thousand to the hundreds.

But radio also took toll in another way. It made the average song hit's life a matter of a few weeks, so constantly was the tune dinned into the ears. New formulas were tried. Love was banished temporarily, from the hosannas of Broadway. To make way for what? For "Peanut Vendors" and "Stein Songs." They, too, were not able to endure. They were finally set down as novelties, as stopgaps while the songwriters waited for the moon.

Broadcasters are showing more enterprise in hunting down the picturesque phases of early American life. Show boats, spelling bees, quoit-pitching, quilt-patching, river steamboat racing—all have been grist to the microphonic mills. People all over the land tuned into radio representations of these colorful activities of a nation that was actually pulling itself up to a world power by its mud-encrusted boot straps. These activities seemed to them to recall a civilization that was responsible for a Lincoln and a Jackson.

The hobnailed tramp of the hillbillies to the radio salons continues, but much of their novelty has disappeared. What was obviously their next step? Why, to vitalize something of the feudal spirit which had made them glamorous symbols of Americana.

CIVIC BODIES URGE VETO OF FIREWORKS BILL

Harmony Short Line Bus Opposed

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

When the 11-year-old ladies in the history class of Washington (Pa.) Seminary make good marks, their teacher kindly allows them to publish a magazine. And their magazine, our favorite, is "Wit and Wisdom."

"Wit and Wisdom" positively is uncensored. While its motto might well be "Unhampered by Adult Eyes," it is, in truth, as the editorial page declares: "Moto: Knowledge Is Power."

There is an editorial column, too. And here it is, uncensored:

"The last magazine we published sold 87 copies. We sold them to the house girls, our families, the faculty, and our friends. We hope that you were pleased with them. We will publish this magazine as long as we have good grades in History class."

There are two serials running in "Wit and Wisdom" at the same time. One, by Miss Betty Tudor Gairdner, is entitled "Elizabeth's Adventures in the Navy;" the other, by Miss Helen Margaret Murphy, the editor, is "Boney Hand," a realistic piece illustrated with an impressive caricature of a rather boney hand. The other members of the staff are Miss Elizabeth Davis, assistant editor; Miss Margaret Thompson, also an assistant editor, and, once more, Miss Elizabeth Davis, artist; Miss Jean Victorson is the circulation manager, while Miss Margaret Thompson, the assistant editor, is the circulation manager, too.

There is, of course, a crossword puzzle in which 13 across is a contraction of the word meow. But we prefer the poetry, which is meaty. Take the contribution of Miss Victorson which is entitled "Dracula." Here it is:

"What ever can it be?
It is something you MUST see!
The man's a fiend!
He makes you wiend.
He can cure you.
He can lure you.
AH!"

Or, if there is no poetry in your soul, perhaps you'll lean to this biography of one of our Presidents:

"ALL AMERICAN HEROES"

"When Adams was President he did not ride about in a Rholes-Royce. On the day Adams was elected President he started for the White House in a broken down stage coach. He went over rocks and hills and got lost three times. When they arrived, instead of a nice avenew, there was a muddy street, with hogs, pigs and cows. When they arrived at the White House, there was glassless windows, and a great big ditch filled with water. Mrs. Adams had to give a party as it was accustomed. They built a bridge over the ditch and Mrs. Adams found some plates to use. She did not have any because they had broke on the way. (The End.)"

Only three issues of "Wit and Wisdom" have been published thus far, but, history willing, there should be more, for it is apparent from the editorial in the last issue that the magazine is progressing by at least leaps and bounds. It is the editorial of Miss Murphy, the editor, and it is tersely titled:

"Safety First—

"My subject this month is Hit and run drivers. They are people who go very fast and if they ran over someone they keep on going and never stop to see who they ran over. You must always look left then right. Once I was on a train, and a man was turning the switch when the train back and ran over him."

RIVAL CLAIMS PERMIT NOT REGULAR

Trolley Car Resumption Sought by Ellwood City; Certificate Temporary

Strong opposition to the application of the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company for a permanent certificate to operate an express and freight service between Pittsburgh, Beaver Falls and Ellwood City was voiced today in a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Charles A. Young.

Elwood City opposed the application, counsel stated, in an effort to try to force the Harmony Short Line, now in the hands of a receiver and permitted to discontinue operations by the U. S. District Court because of financial difficulties, to resume operations.

RIVAL PROTESTS

The Beaver Valley Service Company also objected to granting a certificate. The protestants claim the temporary certificate, under which the motor concern now operates, was granted without them being notified of the application.

The company asked for such a certificate last December and was refused. A rehearing was held in March and a temporary certificate granted. In the meantime the motor company made arrangements for conducting the service it now asks, with others.

RENTALS BLAMED

David I. McCahill, its president, and also of the Butler Short Line Railway, telling of the financial difficulties of the latter, explained how he had paid from his own pocket, large sums of money in an effort to keep the road in operation. He asserted large rentals demanded by the Pittsburgh Railways Company for space in the Exposition building and operation of cars over the road, together with abandonment of the company's franchise in New Castle, caused the Short Line's downfall.

CITY MANAGER FIGHT PUSHED BY BOARDS

Allied Groups Will Urge Legislation for Change In Government of City

Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, has been authorized to appoint a special committee to continue the fight of the boards for a city manager for Pittsburgh. The committee will solicit support for legislation for the plan. Its membership is to be named within a week, it was said.

At the meeting last night four new directors were elected. They were George A. Young of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade; Ralph S. Boots of the Civic Club; William B. Rodgers of the Bellevue Board of Trade, and Fred C. Haller of the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce.

Guests at the meeting of the board last night were Judge Sara Soffel of County Court; District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Judges Sylvester J. Snee, Samuel H. Gardner, W. Heber Dithrich, Joseph Stadtfeld, William H. McNaugher and John Egan of Common Pleas Court.

Reports were received of a conference with representatives of the organization and City Council regarding an extension of the Mt. Washington roadway, from the Hilltop terminus of the boulevard to the West End, and an observation tower on the crest of the hill. It was decided to solicit the aid of the county commissioners for the plans.

CHINESE DENIES DOPE CHARGES

Yee King Lai, 39, national president of the On Leong Tong, went on the witness stand in his own behalf at the trial in Federal Court of himself and nine other Chinese, charged with violating government narcotic laws.

Lai denied having any connection with stores at 515 Third avenue and 522 Third avenue. Government narcotic agents had testified seizing smoking opium in raids at the stores on November 19. He said the On Leong Tong is a Chinese merchants organization, and his duties as national president took him to various cities and he spent only about 10 months a year in Pittsburgh.

Several other defendants also went on the stand and the defense expects to close today.

PLAN TERMED 'COMPROMISE WITH DEATH'

Mayor Kline Asked to Kill Measure to Protect Children From Explosives

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, Irene Kaufmann Settlement and other civic organizations in the city were urging today that Mayor Charles H. Kline veto the fireworks ordinance passed by Council this week.

The ordinance is a "compromise with death, injury to persons and destruction of property," according to Sidney A. Teller, director of the settlement.

The life and property protection committee of the Chamber protests the ordinance as a "hideous rebuke to parents of children killed and maimed in Fourth of July celebrations."

The groups ask for prohibition of the sale of fireworks under any conditions in Pittsburgh. They want the sale limited to public displays alone, as provided in a prohibitive measure introduced in Council by Councilman Robert Garland. The Garland measure was ignored by Council when sale was made legal under another ordinance.

THREE INJURED BY AUTOS

Two McKeesport children and a Camden (Pa.) youth were in McKeesport Hospital today suffering injuries received in automobile accident last night.

Elizabeth Wozniak, 6, of 1032 French street, received a possible fractured skull when struck by an automobile at Eleventh and Walnut streets. Her condition was said to be serious.

Patsy Pellachio, 5, of 407 Twenty-fifth street, suffered body bruises and internal injuries in a similar accident near Twenty-seventh street.

Tragic Prize Beauty Tells First Intimate Details of Romance

By CHARLOTTE NASH NIXON-NIRDLINGER

The story of Frederick Nixon-Nirdlinger's strange romance with Charlotte Nash is here told for the first time by the beauty prize winner who was acquitted in Nice, France, of the murder of her husband.

In this, the fourth installment of her dramatic life tale, she discusses her first impressions of her husband, his remarkable personality and career, and the swift series of events that led to her decision to marry him. It is here she explains for the first time how she was "duped" into believing Nixon-Nirdlinger was a lonely bachelor.

NICE.

A few months before the tragedy that come into our lives, one of my husband's most intimate friends boastfully said to me:

"Nixon-Nirdlinger has a peculiar code of life. He claims that deceit is the only crime and that if wrongdoing is done openly it ceases to be a crime. He absolutely takes no pains to cover up anything he does, not even to contradict any stories published about him."

But Fred's code of life mustn't have been in working order when he met me. The one crime he abhorred was the one he used to win me—he deceived me.

You must remember I was young and he was kind and, therefore, I believed in him. At first he took me to and from the theaters of Philadelphia. He allowed me to appear in theaters in his chain. Eventually he began to call on me every evening. He wanted me to have no time for anyone else. Before I could stop it, without rudeness and unkindness, I realized he was taking almost a proprietary interest in me.

Shows Jealousy

Indeed, from the first he showed himself intensely jealous of me. He reveled in the attention I suppose I attracted—and which he probably thought included himself. From the beginning of our friendship I noticed how bitterly he resented attention shown me by individual men.

This attitude of mind was to persist throughout our entire married life and, as you will see later, our bitter quarrels were based mostly on Fred's jealousy complex. I'm sure we could have been happy but for it. Otherwise Fred was kind and generous. Unfortunately, these qualities are useless when overshadowed by a suspicious nature, particularly in married life.

After a while Fred began to talk vaguely of the future. He explained to me that he was free to marry. He said that four years previous to this time he had had "a woman friend," but they had broken up their affair. It seemed, however, this woman went by his name "for protection."

That was Fred's story. I, being too young to understand, never having had any worldly experience—and Fred was so charming, so accommodating—I believed him and continued to

A five dollar bill, nestled in the pages of the Pitsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph, was the unexpected find of Mrs. David Poole, of 3945 Winshire street, North Side, last Sunday.

The bill, one of the old large size, was first believed to be a coupon.

No explanation as to how the bill got into the paper has been found. It was in the pages of the Sunday American Magazine section of the paper.

It is the only thing that she ever found, Mrs. Poole said.

CHILD VICTIM STILL IN COMA

As he entered his three hundred and fourth hour of unconsciousness at 8 a. m. today, 8-year-old Billy Armitage's condition was unchanged in the Citizens General Hospital at New Kensington. He is suffering from a blood clot on his brain as a result of being struck by an automobile in the Leechburg road May 15.

Meanwhile the lip stick container, which had lodged in the lung of John Ginkel, 7, of Freyburg, Clarion County, has moved about seven inches during the last 36 hours, according to physicians at Passavant Hospital today. They said that the outcome depended upon the boy's resistance, and that he is holding his own in his fight for life. The object has moved from the lung proper into the pleural cavity, the space between the lung and its protective covering, the doctors said.

John, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ginkel, swallowed the container while using it as a whistle last Friday.

A doctor was hurriedly summoned to the home of Mrs. James Demark, 623 Sedan way, West End, yesterday when her daughter, Eleanor, 12, swallowed 31 cents.

Eleanor had been sent to the store by her mother, and had put the coins in her mouth while playing ball. She fell and swallowed the quarter, nickel and penny. She was treated by Dr. William Frederick, of 101 Chartiers avenue, Elliott.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

We have all kinds of various "weeks"—"Eat an apple week," "Don't shoot your husband week," "Don't cuss the Republicans any more than you can help week." But Claremore, Oklahoma, the home of the great radium water, is having, this week, one of the most practical and useful ones — "Take a bath week." They can't relieve the present depression but they can relieve the tissues. Even the Rotarys and Kiwanis, the Lions, Apes and Chamber of Commerce have joined in the novelty of the thing and it bids fair to become a yearly event. My old friend Gov. Murray and myself have been cordially invited to attend. Yours, WILL.

TWO ROUTES WITHOUT DETOURS (EXCEPT FOR CITY, BOROUGH REPAIRING) OUTLINED FOR SATURDAY MEMORIAL TRIP

All School Visitors Urged To Co-operate in Work

Praising the plan behind the Boards of School Visitors, Mrs. Allena G. Stuhlfire, secretary of the Third Ward board, today suggested periodical meetings of representatives of boards throughout the city as a means to greater efficiency in their work.

Duties of Boards of School Visitors comprise regular inspection of schools in their wards and recommendation to the Board of Education of needed repairs and improvements. There is one board of seven members for each ward.

Recommendations of the boards would have more weight with the Board of Education, Mrs. Stuhlfire believes, if they were indorsed by a body representing visitors throughout the city. Greater efficiency could be reached by individual boards, too, she says, if each knew the methods of the others and if a standard code for schools were set up toward which each group could work.

Among the first to approve the plan were Mrs. Frank J. Boyle, secretary of the Eighth Ward board, and Mrs. Estelle K. Williams, secretary in the Fourteenth Ward.

TWO SUSPECTS IN ROBBERIES ARRESTED

Youth Held as Bandit and Purse Thief; Man Jailed In Crashing of Window

Squirrel Hill and Penn avenue police early today arrested a youth suspected of being an East End store robber and purse snatcher, and a man who is accused of throwing a brick through a Penn avenue grocery store window.

The youth, Squirrel Hill police said, is George La Sante, 19, of 3742 Frazier street. After questioning, Lieut. W. J. Lavery said he admitted snatching purses.

QUIZZED ABOUT AUTO

Police also said he answered the description of a youth wanted for store robberies. Lieut. Lavery was endeavoring to learn whether the youth knew anything of an automobile found abandoned in Noble street, in which a revolver and two sets of license plates were found. The machine is similar to one used in robberies, it was said.

Herman Jackson, 28, Negro, of 1230 Wylie avenue, was being held in Penn Avenue Station following his arrest by the crew of a police scout car. Police said he was arrested shortly after a brick was thrown through the window of the Kroger grocery store at 2813 Penn avenue. He has been identified as the brick thrower, according to police.

Patriots Threw Chairs At Rebel Villain After Civil War

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The announcement by several theaters that members of the G. A. R. (if any) would be admitted free to the performances on Saturday, which is Memorial Day, might have meant a full house once upon a time. Now, if a veteran of the Civil War presents himself at the box office, he is likely to be put on the stage as one of the attractions.

There was a time when the veterans were great playgoers. There was even a time when plays were written specially for their delectation—and "waving the bloody shirt" was a part of dramatic technique.

George Seibel

Two of these plays that were most popular were "The Drummer Boy of Gettysburg" and "The Drummer Boy of Shiloh." Among the requirements of these dramas the most important were that the drummer boy must get killed and the villains must all be rebels, though it wasn't necessary for every Reb to be a villain.

Once when the "Drummer Boy of Shiloh" was played in the old Academy of Music in Liberty street, it turned into a near tragedy. The poor little drummer boy is in Libby Prison. He crosses the dead line by chance and a rebel keeper shoots him.

As the boy fell after the shot a patriotic veteran in the first gallery hurled a loose chair down to avenge the murder. It hit the big trombone in the orchestra. It might have killed the trombone player. But he escaped and so did the villainous Johnny Reb.

There were actors in those days—and patriots.

IRVING AND GOODWIN

Actors have often complained that the public memory is so short. But the memory of the actors themselves is occasionally none too long, as a story just told by Fred Kerr, a London veteran character comedian, serves to illustrate.

The story is about Sir Henry Irving and Nat Goodwin. Irving was making a speech at a dinner in London given in honor of some visiting American players. He mentioned all except Goodwin, who was the most important of the group. So a friend, who noticed the omission, wrote Goodwin's name on a slip of paper, and handed it to Irving.

"Of course, there is one guest with us tonight—a man we are always—always delighted to have among us—er—whose name is a household word—household word in both hemispheres—I need hardly say that I allude to—my dear old friend (with a hasty glance at the paper)—my dear old friend—Nit Godwin."

SHAKESPEARE'S DAUGHTER

That there is a good deal of legend and myth about stage and literary people is well known, but the most amusing bit of scandal is revealed in some recent "Memoirs of Marie Corelli." The novelist lived in Stratford, and her famous legal encounter with Andrew Carnegie over the Stratford Carnegie Library connects her with Pittsburgh in a way. She used to think that tourists came to see her home, "Mason Croft," as much as to see Ann Hathaway's cottage. But one day a friend overheard a story that must have taken down her pride.

A countryman was saunterinp through Church street, and was attracted by the beautiful flowers on the front of Mason Croft—hyacinths, tulips, pansies and golden gilly-flowers. He inquired who was the owner and was told it was Marie Corelli, the writer.

"Ah, yes," he replied; "I know, just so—the daughter of William Shakespeare."

Former Prosecutor Denies Arson Charge

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 28.—(AP.)—C. Harrison Lund, former assistant district attorney of Erie, pleaded not guilty to charges brought against him by investigators of the national board of fire underwriters, who alleged that a large "arson ring" operated in Erie, Crawford and Warren counties. Lund was released under $5,000 pending a hearing June 3. His arrest followed investigation of a fire on his Summer Hill Township farm.

Bird's Eggs Taken, Suspect Is Arrested

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., May 28.—Fourteen pheasant eggs disappeared from a nest on the game preserve of the Wild Life League, and George Martin, 31, of Lower Burrell Township, was arrested, charged with the theft. Dan J. Zeloyle, police chief and deputy game warden, said he found the eggs, which were about ready to hatch, in Martin's home.

NOTES ABOUT COMING FILM ATTRACTIONS IN THEATERS

"Gold Dust Gertie," with Winnie Lightner will be the new picture in the Stanley beginning tomorrow. "Women of All Nations," previously booked, has been held up by the Pennsylvania censors. Dick Powell offers "Carnival of Youth" on the stage. A Sunday midnight show will be held in the Stanley hereafter.

"The Secret Six," starring Wallace Beery, written by Frances Marion, and filmed under the direction of George Hill, the same trio responsible for "The Big House," is the attraction opening on the Penn screen tomorrow. Jean Harlow, Marjorie Rambeau, Clark Gable, John Miljan, Lewis Stone and Johnny Mack Brown are also in the cast.

In addition to the Pennsylvania premier of "The Public Enemy," this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Davis, this same film will be shown several hours later in the Enright for patrons attending the last performance of "Six Cylinder Love," current in that theater.

MAY ROBSON STARRED

"The She Wolf," starring May Robson, and with Francis Dade, James Hall and Lawrence Gray, prominent in the cast, will open the Warner tomorrow night, immediately after the last performance of "Big Business Girl."

William Powell, who is starred in "Ladies Man," a filmization of Rupert Hughes' novel, which comes tomorrow to the Aldine, is supported by Kay Francis and Carole Lombard. Powell plays the part of James Darricott, a polished and suave man-about-town, who haunts the drawing rooms of the idle rich.

STOCK'S FAREWELL

"She Couldn't Say No," current in the Alvin, is the farewell bill of the Geo. Sharp Players. They will close their season Saturday night.

Buck Jones in "The Fighting Sheriff" and Betty Compson in "A Lady Refuses" will comprise the double bill in the Harris, beginning Saturday.

Clive Brook, Charles Rogers, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur head the cast of "The Lawyer's Secret," talking screen drama, which opens in the Fulton and Sheridan Square today.

ZIEGFELD'S 'FOLLIES' MAY MAKE BOW HERE

Ziegfeld's new "Follies of 1931" is all ready to open outside of New York, prior to the New York premiere. Boston, Stanford, Conn., Atlantic City, Baltimore and Pittsburgh are being considered for the out-of-town premiere. Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, went to New York Monday and had a long talk with Florenz Ziegfeld and tried to convince him that June 8 was not too late in the season to do business. Ziegfeld admitted that he considered Pittsburgh his mascot, and that he would wire Mr. Brown no later than Friday.

The last "Follies" that Mr. Ziegfeld did was about four or five years ago, and every "Follies" broke their record in Pittsburgh.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

I guess it is true that alcohol brings on the blues instead of shooting them . . . With all the gaiety about those three aviators in that cafe the other night they found something to weep about . . . Because someone mentioned "Speed" Holman and his fatal crash . . . "It's funny, isn't it," said one of their intimates later, "those guys are hard-boiled and all that sort of thing but they cry like babies when a veteran flier gets killed" . . . What's the difference between a veteran flier and a youngster?" I asked him . . . "Oh, well," he answered, "you see, when a veteran dies that way it hits home, but when a youngster gets killed, what the hell? They merely chek it up to the fact that he was a dunce, and should have used his brains" . . . The explanation left me frigid . . . It seemed to me that the youngster is the one to rate the tears . . . The vets should know better . . . Wonder what the new theme, if any, will be in the movies, the magazines, the newspapers and the stage . . . And when the cycle will switch . . . Something about to be done about the endless gangster series . . . The Broadway audiences are commencing to titter at 'em which is as it should be . . . The whole mess is strictly one re-write after the other . . . The surest way to be artificial, as the sages had it, is to try to be natural according to some other feller's recipe.

That gag about Milton C. Work charging newspaper readers for advice on bridge was funny enough, it appears, but offensive to the expert . . . Because he doesn't charge a fee for counsel . . . It was the third time I had used it, in magazines the column and via the mike, but Mr. Work apparently was too busy to challenge the tale before . . . It would be just as amusing without naming anyone . . .

I shall remember that the next time I use it . . . That is most interesting about the dwelling at No. 462 W. 22d St. . . . Where George P. Morris composed his poem, "Woodman, Spare That Tree." . . . Edward Blythe, of No. 258 9th Ave., says that our report that the tree stood at 96th St. and the Hudson is correct, but the verse was written on 22d St. . . . And that he wrote it in the backyard of that address in 1842 . . . The woodman got $10 to spare the tree, and the woodman's dotter is supposed to have asserted: "That tree shall stand as long as I live" . . . And that Mr. Kilpatrick, of No. 148 Broadway, a realtor, could tell anybody who is interested all the facts . . . That crack from St. is amusing . . . That one of the reasons the U. S. planes won the air battle in New York on Satdee is that the enemy got tired of waiting and went home.

I thought I was familiar with most of the gun-mob slanguage

Tragic Beauty Reveals First Intimate Account Of Her Romance

admire him greatly. But it was not until after our marriage, as later events will show, that I discovered to my horror he had been married twice previously and was still legally mated to at least one of his former wives.

Rapid Courtship

But all of these suspicions were far from my mind during his rapid-fire courtship. He simply lifted me off my feet by his generosity and kindness and thoughtfulness. My admiration for him increased as he told me the story of his life. I believe some of the high lights of it bear repeating here, because they were to have an indirect effect upon my own fortunes and they also will show the driving force behind Fred.

In the first place, his surname was a combination of his own (Nixon) with the name of his grandfather, Frederick Nirdlinger. The first Frederick, Fred told me, was a man of wealth and prominence in Indiana. When his son, Samuel, (Fred's father) grew to maturity, he horrified old Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger by announcing his attention to go into the theatrical business. The old man considered all theatrical men "showmen." He refused to sanction the move.

But the son, Samuel, left home and was so angry at his father that he changed his name to Nixon—and, as you probably know, lived to see that name one of power in the theatrical world. Samuel's son, Fred, when he grew up combined his old family name with that of his father's adopted name. He always was known as Nixon-Nirdlinger.

One of his sons by a first marriage, however, dropped the Nixon part. The second son by the same marriage, Jack, retained the hyphenated form of the name. Fred's meeting with A. L. Erlanger, of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger, resulted in his later achievements in the theater, for Mr. Erlanger gave him the first chance. He was given a theater to manage and in 1910 founded his own, the Nixon Theater, in Philadelphia.

Own Theaters

Fred told me he never rested on his idea to establish a chain of theaters, and within six years after being given the management of a Klaw & Erlanger theater, he had begun to build up his own string that since has been associated with his name. His biggest coup, I suppose, was to lead a syndicate that purchased the Metropolitan Opera House in North Broad street, for $625,000. He retired from active business when another theater chain took over his theaters.

One thing Fred always seemed to love was a law suit. He reveled in the atmosphere of the court and constantly took his troubles there. For years he was the storm-center of almost ceaseless litigation. If he was not engaged in a dispute over theatrical and motion picture rights, real or fancied, he was embroiled (as I was soon to find out) in a row because of his matrimonial ventures.

While I am telling of Fred's achievements and personality, I think it a good time to speak of one thing about which little was said and nothing was written. That is the great power he had over men, the ability he had to endear himself to his masculine associates and friends.

An old theatrical man said:

"All men loved Freddy."

He told me confidentially that these men knew of Fred's various intrigues, his manifold entanglements with women, yet they considered him SUCH a good fellow. I cannot understand that attitude at all. They said he was fair—and he probably was to everybody but those nearest and dearest to him.

Helped Needy

For instance, he was generous toward those unfortunate in business and ready with the hand of charity. When an employe of one of his theaters was hurt, Fred would contribute largely to the family in its misfortune. He thought nothing of taking friendly business associates and their wives to Europe on pleasure jaunts. Whenever he went abroad he refused to permit his houses in the United States to stand idle—he would turn them over to friends and business associates rent free.

Yet this was the same man who allowed me practically no money. He compelled me to charge everything I purchased. Every bill was scrutinized carefully. Explanations were demanded whenever he thought a purchase unjustified. Every telephone call was intercepted. He employed detectives to shadow me to stores and to every other place I went. At one time he had four sleuths on his payroll in order that I should be under surveillance throughout the day and night.

His friends to this day insist that it was the injury he received in an automobile accident a year ago that changed his nature. This, in a way, is true. But I intend to show later that instead of changing his spirit of jealousy and suspicion, it aggravated it.

On Broadway

until last night . . . "See you later," said one of the Times Square marksmen, "gotta go uptown and send a friend of mine a flower." . . . A flower being a wreath plus crepe . . . All is fair in love and Broadway, to repeat a favorite epigram . . . The moment one of the boys put his lamps on his pal's gal, he adored her . . . And lost no time pirating her . . . The new combination is hitting on all cylinders, however . . . But the femme fagin had to leave town, and urged the lad from whom he thefted the gal to "mind" her for him. . . . Which is what he is doing . . . "I feel so funny about it," he was saying yesterday, "not so long ago she was my baby, and now I am watching her for another guy" . . . No wonder Love laughs at locksmiths, as the wags have it, they have to retaliate at somebody for the way people laugh at love . . . Wonder how the war is coming out between all the people who claim they composed the melody to "St. James Infirmary?" . . . It will be most embarrassing if a good lawyer thinks fast enough to remind them that the tune is really the yiddisher, "Katzotsky."

I guess the towners are just too poor to go to the playhouses. . . . James W. Elliott, producer of "Brass Ankle," decided to do something about the sitch-ee-ay-shun, and took up great space in the papers recently announcing that he would help remedy things. . . . Mr. Elliott was the pioneer in the movement to slash theater ticket prices—his best seats would sell for $2 . . . But the show closes Saturday night, anyhow . . . Wonder if it is a fact that little Jackie Cooper is an adopted son of Jack Coogan, Sr.? . . . Hollywood has been paying him $75 weekly, when he worked, the Variety publisher was saying, and $50 when he didn't . . . But that Metro had just signed the kid for $25,000 a year . . . Coogan's Jackie brought him millions . . . I remember Coogan in vaudeville when he worked with his wife . . . And the breaks were usually sour . . . Ho, hum . . . Some people get the juiciest fruits.

The more I see that Fred Monroe mimic at the 300 Club the more I appreciate his routines . . . He is refreshing, to say the least, considering that he is the only imitator on Broadway who announces that he is imitating . . . A novelty, indeed . . . Wonder if I was being kidded by that fellow? . . . Who told me that unless someone within the fortnight straightened out a mess among the baddies, a machine gun war would commence that would make the Battle of the Marne seem Pansyish . . . And that the battlefront would have to be in the latter 40's . . . Oh, yeah? . . . I'm afraid the gang flickers have no effect on the boys, at all . . . If that horrible ending to "Public Enemy" doesn't make them behave, certainly no electric chair will . . . Which reminds me about the crime reporter who has been having himself a time speaking his mind in print about the outlaws . . . He went to a party given the other day, to which representative locals came . . . And he took his departure two minutes before some of the boys arrived, who purposely came to get on his right side—with a cannon.

They'll probably say it is because the summer is here . . . But the Broadway night life business nose-dived in the winter, too . . . There are so few of them left to while away the time now . . . Particularly on the Sabbath nights, when those that did the "best" trade pull down the shudders and trim the gas bills . . . At the Argonaut, frinstance, the best known of the midtown sin-spots. . . . To shave expenses they have decided to make one girl each week take a forced holiday, sans pay . . . So some "mind" figured out a gag to decide which lass should be the first to take the forced vacation . . . All their names were jotted down on tiny bits of paper and put into a hat . . . The gals who are fed by their families weren't worried, nor were those who have sweeten-heartens who haven't felt the depression . . . Alongside the names of the gals were numbers—if Miss Lambert's number was No. 1, then she would be the first to be laid off . . . She is the chief support at her home, but that isn't considered when the fates start pranking . . . So she is the first to suffer . . . A better system, I think, would be to have all the girls contribute a five-spot to the "goat," the coin to be used for a genuine holiday in the mountains, so that her lungs might get acquainted with fresh air.

SCHOOLS JOIN IN CONCERT

A double concert will be presented tonight in Carnegie Music Hall by Pittsburgh's all-city high school orchestra, composed of musicians from 11 high chools. Lee M. Lockhart, special supervisor of instrumental music, will direct the concert.

The concert was arranged to afford the players an opportunity to appear before an audience, to enlist school and public interest in the organizations and to provide funds for promotion of music and music contests next year.

Assisting in the management of the band and orchestra will be Oscar W. Demmler, of Fifth avenue, Bertha Baker, of Schenley High, and W. Walter Jones, of Taylor Allderdice High School.

PLAN TO LIGHT DANGER ZONE

A stop and go light is to be installed at Bellefield avenue and Forbes street to eliminate the accident menace at the street car loading platform in front of Carnegie Library. The City Traffic Department also plans to illuminate the safety zone and to provide lighting facilities for 60 loading zones throughout the city.

President of City Council John S. Herron has directed the City Traffic Department to make an analysis of traffic accidents in the vicinity of loading zones. At Carnegie Library there have been 11 accidents within the last three years and four out of five collisions there occurred after midnight.

Amen Corner Plans Honors for Harris

State Senator Frank J. Harris will be honor guest Friday night at a "homecoming party," including supper, music and entertainment, under auspices of the board of directors of the Amen Corner in the club's William Penn Hotel rooms.

The party will be a testimonial to Harris' efforts "as an advocate and leader in the advancement of welfare and humanitarian legislation which will bring health, safety and happiness to many of our unfortunates."

Itchy Pimples on Scalp. Hair Fell Out. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble began with pimples and blackheads on my face and I also had pimples on my scalp. The pimples were red and itched and burned causing me to scratch. BACK ACHE, NERVOUS, DIZZY

MRS. JOHN MILLER and TWINS

Meadville (Kerrtown), Pa.—"I am the mother of five children. Before my third baby came I was very weak—unable to attend to my household duties. My appetite was poor, I had nervous headaches and dizzy spells, and my back bothered me. I was afraid I did not have the necessary strength that one requires at this time. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and while on my first bottle began to pick up. I used about three bottles and soon felt like myself again. It gave the necessary strength for my baby as well as for myself. Since then I have had very healthy twin boys. (See above.)"—Mrs. John Miller, Henderson Ave.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

SALMON PUFFS—Remove the skin and bones from 2 cups cooked salmon, either canned or fresh. Chop the fish fine and season with salt and pepper and a dash of paprika. Add ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and 3 eggs which have been well beaten. When thoroughly mixed, pack into oiled cups, filling the cups evenly to the top. Set the cups immediately into a pan of hot water, fill the pan to about one inch below the tops of the cups, and bake 30 minutes. Place a sheet of paper over the cups if the oven is very hot. Serve the puffs on a hot platter, garnishing each with a sprig of parsley, and pour the egg sauce around the fish.

ORANGE STRAWBERRY SALAD—Combine 2 cups of orange pieces, a cup of halved strawberries, a cup of diced peaches and arrange on lettuce covered salad plates. Serve with a dressing made of quarter cup of mayonnaise into which a meringue of a stiffly beaten egg white and 2 tablespoons of sugar have been folded. Spread the dressing over the salad, sprinkle lightly with ½ cup of shredded cocoanut and powdered sugar. Serve at once.

BIRD'S NEST SALAD—Mix ½ pound cottage cheese to a smooth paste with salt, pepper and a little cream, add ¼ pound of nut meats and a teaspoon of chopped parsley, and form into little balls. Place 3 or 4 balls in the center of crisp lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise.

FANCY CHEESE SALAD—Mash a cream cheese, mix with ¼ pound chopped preserved figs and ¼ pound chopped English walnuts, shape into a square loaf, let stand several hours, cut into slices and serve on lettuce leaves with any fancied dressing.

MARSHMALLOW SALAD—Cut ½ pound of marshmallows in quarters and mix them with a cup of crushed canned pineapple. Let stand several hours. Just before serving, add ¼ cup shelled pecans. Serve on lettuce or chicory, cover with mayonnaise to which ½ cup of whipped cream has been added.

UNCOOKED FROSTING—Combine 3 tablespoons hot evaporated milk and 2 tablespoons orange juice. Add enough confectioner's sugar to make of the right consistency to spread, then add vanilla.

GRAHAM BREAD—Three cups graham flour, ½ cupful sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 eggs, 1 pint sour milk, 1 cupful bread flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons cream of tartar, 2 tablespoons melted shortening.

Beat the eggs, cream in the sugar and salt and add the shortening. Sift the soda and cream of tartar with the flour and add alternately to the first mixture with the milk. Beat in the flour. Mix well and pour into a well greased loaf pan and bake for 45 to 50 minutes in a fairly hot oven—350-375 degrees Fahrenheit.

MACEDOINE OF LIVER—Wipe 1 pound of liver with a damp cloth. Wash and dry 2 lamb tongues. Place in a saucepan with ½ cup vinegar and enough water to cover. Add a sliced onion, 6 cloves, a bay leaf, a bunch of savory herbs, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of curry powder, a few celery leaves and stalks and a tablespoonful of sugar. Cook until the liver is tender, then remove it. Continue to cook until the tongues are tender, remove them, cool slightly, skin and trim. Put tongues and liver through meat grinder. Boil down the liquor until reduced to 1 cup and strain it over the meat. Pack into a wet mold until firm and cold. Cut in thick slices, dip in egg, crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serves eight.

CASSEROLE OF VEAL—Three pounds breast of veal, 1 slice salt pork, 4 small carrots, stock or water, 1 cup green peas, 4 small potatoes, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 onion, sliced.

Dice half of the salt pork and fry in skillet. Saute the onion in the fat, skim it out when sauted and put it into a buttered casserole dish. Cut veal in pieces and sear in the hot fat. When browned, add to the onion in the casserole. Add remaining pork, diced, and boiling water or stock on the depth of about one inch. Cover closely and cook in a moderate oven for 1½ hours. Add carrots and potatoes, diced or in balls, peas and if you like, a little rice. Cover and cook for 1 hour longer. Add Worcestershire sauce and serve from the casserole.

Food From Sea Nutritious And Wholesome

Dr. Copeland declares that sea-food should form a regular part of the diet and praises the nutritious qualities of the lobster, ranking its fat and protein content with that of beef and other meats.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York

In the early colonial days there was a great abundance of lobsters. Recently, due to the demand becoming greater than the supply, it became necessary to pass laws to protect the industry.

The importance and significance of sea food as a part of our daily diet have brought about the development of this great industry. There still remain many people who indulge in this form of food only on state occasions. This is unfortunate, as lobsters and other sea food are nutritious.

Though a salt water animal, the lobster very closely resembles the common crawfish found in fresh water streams. It is dark green and at times almost approaches a black color. After boiling it becames red. The pinkish meat is found in the tail and claws.

The pinkish meat is the most delicious part of the lobster. The protein and fats of the lobster are equal to that of beef and other meats. It has been definitely shown from every standpoint that this food may be substituted for ordinary meats.

It has been proved that fish and shell fish, such as lobsters, contain a liberal supply of iodine. This is of great importance in the prevention of certain diseases.

Unfortunately, some persons possess a certain sensitivity to lobsters and perhaps to all sea food. Such people should abstain from this form of food.

Friday should not be the only day for eating fish. Fish and shell fish should be eaten more frequently. Perhaps we depend too much on meat and forget the nutritive wholesome content of fish and shell fish.

Chop egg whites. Reserve 1 yolk for garnishing. Mash remaining yolk with bread crumbs, then add the whites and minced pepper. Melt butter, stir in the egg mixture, then add the crab meat, celery, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Stir in the cream gradually and cook 5 minutes. Add catsup and seasoning sauce just before removing from fire. Serve in heated ramekins. Serves four.

ROAST CHUCK—Four pounds chuck, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup thinly sliced onion, 2 tablespoons flour, ⅛ teaspoon all-spice, 4 teaspoons salt, 2 bay leaves.

Wipe meat with a damp cloth, then dredge with flour. Rub the skillet with suet and when pan is hot, quickly sear it on all sides. Add seasonings, except salt. Roast in hot oven for 15 minutes, sprinkle with salt, lower heat and cook slowly until tender. Baste every 20 minutes, adding a little boiling water if necessary. This dish will require about 3 hours in preparation.

BRAISED BEEF—Three pounds brisket, 2 thin slices salt pork, ½ teaspoon peppercorns, 2 cups boiling water, 3 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup carrots, ¼ cup turnips, ¼ cup onions, ¼ cup celery, flour, bacon drippings.

Wipe meat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and brown in the drippings. Place in baking pan and cover with vegetables, peppercorns and boiling water. Cover closely and bake 4 hours in a very slow oven.

ORANGE TOAST BROWNIE—One-quarter cup orange juice, grated rind orange, ½ cup sugar, 6 slices toast.

SALAD DRESSING—Three-quarter cup lemon juice, ¼ cup sugar, 2 eggs, beaten.

CHOCOLATE SYRUP—A rich chocolate syrup which can be made in quantity and kept in the refrigerator to be used when needed forms the basis of many thirst-quenching and nutritious drinks. It is made in the following manner:

Five squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2½ cups boiling water, ⅛ teaspoon salt.

Melt the chocolate over hot water, add sugar, mix thoroughly, add boiling water and salt. Boil five minutes. Cool and add vanilla. Keep in tightly sealed glass jar until needed.

FROZEN BANANA CREAM—Six ripe bananas, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup stale macaroon crumbs, ½ package lemon gelatin, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 pint heavy cream.

Mash bananas with sugar and lemon juice, and press through fine sieve. Add macaroon crumbs and mix well.

Dissolve gelatin in scalded milk. Add well beaten egg and thicken over hot water. Cool. Add vanilla and salt. Add heavy cream.

Add banana pulp and continue freezing until very stiff.

Pack and ripen two hours. (Serves 6-8).

FROSTED CHOCOLATE—Three tablespoons chocolate syrup, ¾ cup milk, ¼ cup ice cream, ¾ cup charged water.

For two drinks put half the syrup, milk and ice cream in two tall glasses. Add half the charged water to each, stirring well.

Shake well and serve in chilled glass.

Wash and grate apple. (This must be quickly done on a hand grater.) Place in a sherbet glass and cover with the juice of the orange. Top with cocoanut, shredded dates or finely chopped nuts.

For very young children, remove apple skin and omit cocoanut, date or nut topping. Serve one.

CHILDREN DID NOT LIKE SOUP

But Mother Discovered Way to Overcome Their Objections

"Necessity is the mother of invention." A mother proved that recently, when her children said they didn't like the soup she had made of tomatoes, carrots, cabbage and peas. It needed something—and she knew it as well as the children. So after luncheon she tasted the soup again and realized then that the tomatoes had made it a little too tart.

Obviously sugar was needed. So a teaspoonful was added and the result was delicious. That evening when the soup was again served, the children, after one doubtful taste, ate it with keen relish.

"A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt" is being used more and more by cooks in seasoning soups, vegetables and meat dishes. The salt overcomes flatness but the sugar blends the flavors of all the ingredients into a delicious whole. Flavor and season with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Meine Saving Pirates. Cleveland Bars Draws.
McLarnin Turns Tables. Young Netmen Deliver.

LOWLY-RATED HURLER STAR OF STAFF

WHEN IT WAS announced last winter that Heine Meine had decided to return to organized baseball from the voluntarily retired list and would apply for reinstatement with the Pittsburgh club, there was no wild excitement in evidence among Pirate rooters. They appeared to be of the opinion that it didn't mean a whole lot, and that Heinie's plan to try a comeback amounted only to the addition of another name to the pitching roster for the spring training trip.

Heinie Meine

As things have turned out, however, it would have been a mighty tough break for the Buccaneers of Meine hadn't made that decision. They'd be floundering around somewhere near the National League cellar right now, perhaps. As often happens in the uncertain diamond sport, the pitcher of whom the least was expected has delivered the most. Only Meine's brilliant pitching has kept the Pirate trip from being a disaster and saved the Ensmen from being driven farther back.

IN SHUTTING OUT the Cardinals yesterday for the second time in three starts against them, Heinie was merely keeping up the splendid form he has been showing for a month. Of his last seven games he has won six, and the only defeat charged against him during that stretch was suffered in a 16-inning battle in which he outpitched and outlasted Burleigh Grimes, and which he would have added to his string of victories but for a swarm of bad breaks.

Few pitchers anywhere in the majors have been doing better work than Meine. Of the seven games captured by the Pirates on their present tour up to today, the veteran righthander won four, defeating Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis in a row. In his last seven games, including the 16-inning affair, he has allowed only 17 runs. He is only one victory short of having won as many games as Kremer, French, Brame and Wood combined, the quartet that had been expected to keep the club in the race from the start. The Bucs surely would be in a sorry way without him.

THE CARDS HAVE found Meine more troublesome than any other pitcher in the league. Besides shutting them out twice, he came within an ace of beating them three times in succession, and his victory yesterday knocked them out of first place, of which they had held undisputed possession since May 1.

Ens' troopers now cannot get worse than an even break on the trip that ends today, as the log for the cruise shows seven victories against six defeats. They'll be home tomorrow for the first long stay, booked to play at Forbes Field in 18 of their next 19 engagements.

BASEBALL MEN IN general heartily indorse the action of the American League in electing William Harridge to the presidency of the circuit as successor to the late Ernest S. Barnard. While they could offer no objections to William H. McCarthy or others previously mentioned as possibilities, they feel that the league took a wise course in picking a man from its own circle, one who has long been in close touch with the affairs of the organization since he learned the ropes under such a master hand as Ban Johnson. President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pirates, says the American League is to be congratulated on its choice. He pronounces President Harridge an able executive of sound policies and the ideal man for the place.

Jimmy McLarnin

THE SUCCESS OF Jimmy McLarnin in turning the tables on Billy Petrolle and winning the decision over him in their return fight last night in New York will be accepted by most ring followers as bearing out McLarnin's claim that a broken hand had much to do with his defeat in the first bout.

In view of the beating he took on the first occasion and his layoff of six months afterward, there had been considerable doubt prior to last night's tilt as to whether McLarnin was as good as formerly. But his decisive victory restores him to his old standing as the possible next welterweight champion.

THEY MAY LICK McLarnin occasionally, but seemingly he won't stay licked. This is the third time he has come back and whipped a man who once defeated him. The first time it was Ray Miller and the second it was Sammy Mandell. Jimmy outgrew a lighter class before he could do the same to Bud Taylor.

Even with an advantage of four pounds, it takes a fighter of much class to defeat Petrolle, and last night's result re-establishes McLarnin in the opinion of the majority of fans as being just about the best there is around his weight. He proved he has rare boxing skill as well as the punch for which he has been noted.

ONE PLEASING THING about the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Cleveland on June 3 is that there will have to be a decision one way or the other. There can be no draw business. The City Boxing Commission of Cleveland has wisely put up the bars against any thing like that, not only in this bout, but in all others to follow. Draw decisions no longer will be allowed in Cleveland ring tilts. The commission has ruled that hereafter each of the two judges and the referee must name one of the boxers winner.

HASTE HAS PROVED costly to the Brooklyn club. Last year the Robin owners decided to buy Buzz Arlett for $25,000. On that very day Arlett got into a fight with Umpire Chadbourne of the Coast League, who swung his mask and cut the player's face in numerous places.

Not caring to wait for Arlett's recovery, Brooklyn called off the deal and bought Ike Boone instead for $15,000. The other day Boone was released to Toledy. Arlett, bought by the Pirates, leads the majors in home runs with 9, while the National League batting with .378, and [illegible] player in the senior loop to make 50 hits.

IN VIEW OF the form they showed in eliminating Canada four matches to one, and the fine stride in which they were playing at the finish, there is every ground for the confidence that Sidney Wood and Frank Shields will take good care of America's Davis Cup tennis interests in the interzone final against Argentina, starting today in Washington.

Wood, recovered from the effects of his defeat at Marcel Rainville's hands in Canada, is back on his feet and showing all of his old faith in himself, an asset that makes him a hard man to beat. Shields, strictly in against the best tennis

Frank Shields

UNDER THE CAPTION "5, there is a good chance that the United States players will follow up their victories over Mexico and Canada by defeating Argentina for the right to represent the two Americas against the victors in the European zone. This may not be Uncle Sam's year to win back the cup from France, but the kids are demonstrating that even without Bill Tilden and the other veterans this country is likely again to reach the challenge round, at least. At that, the 1931 team [illegible] to which Americ[illegible] has ever been entered [illegible] claimed. That distinction still belongs to Maurice E. (Comet) McLoughlin and Melville H. Long, the Californians who were sent to Australia in 1909 as challengers against Norman E. Brookes and Anthony F. Wilding. McLoughlin was only 19 and Long was just a month past 20.

SHIELDS, WOOD MEET FOES IN SINGLES

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP.)—The opening volley of singles play between the United States and Argentine tennis teams for the right to seek the historic Davis Cup in Europe awaited only the referee's call this afternoon across the courts of the Chevy Chase Club.

Frank X. Shields, newly risen to second place in the United States ranking, was pitted against Guillermo Robson, second ranking Argentine player, in the psychological opening match.

WOOD MEETS BOYD

Immediately afterward, slender Sidney B. Wood, Jr., one of the youngest players ever to carry on American Davis Cup honors, was to face Ronaldo Boyd, who carried his 210 pounds into the first ranking place of Argentine tennis.

The real strength of the Argentine invasion remained an unknown quantity until the opening of play. The talent of Boyd and Robson was known here principally by hearsay, since Argentine's previous Davis Cup participation had been confined mostly to South American and European zones.

Further, the competition faced by the United States and Argentine teams in the present campaign had been held to furnish no suitable basis of comparison.

ARGENTINES STRONG

The South Americans conquered three rivals without the loss of a set, and with their star, the fiery, red-headed Boyd, kept on the sidelines by illness. In their contests with Mexico and Canada the United States lost one match when Wood was defeated in five sets by Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, last Friday.

Discussing the brief exhibition matches before President and Mrs. Hoover yesterday, Edwin C. French, nonplaying Argentine captain, pointed out that the players of both teams undoubtedly were thrown slightly off stride by the difference of the White House court from that of the imported clay surface at Chevy Chase.

W. P. I. A. L. FINAL TODAY

For the second year in a row, McKees Rocks High School has sent a baseball team into the finals of the W. P. I. A. L. campaign. This afternoon the Rox nine, champion of Section I, battles McKeesport, of Section V, for the league championship. The game will be staged at Forbes Field and will be called promptly at 4 o'clock.

A year ago McKees Rocks faced Scott High, of North Braddock, in the final game, and lost.

The series for the City League title will get under way tomorrow between Schenley, of Section I, and South Hills, of Section II. South Hills won the Section II banner yesterday without playing, Carrick eliminating Oliver High, last year's titleholder, 6 to 4.

The game, which was postponed three times, was put on ice early by Carrick. The South Siders scored in each of the first four innings to pile up a 6-to-3 lead and with Kurtz, the no-hit star, in fine form, Oliver lost its chance of getting a playoff crack at South Hills.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: EL KANTARA—GATEWAY TO THE DESERT—In traveling from Constantine to Biskra, I suddenly beheld a cleft in the enormous rocks, through which we could see the road creeping up into the plain beyond. It was the gorge of El Kantara, which separates the Algerian Tell (hilly side) from the Sahara. It is a complete contrast between north and south, between winter and summer. On one side the soil is dark and fertile—on the other it is rosy and desert-like. The rain stops abruptly north of El Kantara and winter never passes it. THE MOSQUITO INDIAN WORD FOR 37—The Mosquito Indians, whose mathematical limit is the figure 20, arrive at expressing the figure 37 by a series of roundabout and rather intricate terms. The literal meaning of the long word is 20 times 1 plus 10 plus 6 plus 1. (See: Squier's "Waikna.")

30 CARS PASS SPEED TESTS

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28.—(AP.)—The fastest field ever to start a 500-mile automobile race—38 of the 40 cars qualifying at more than 100 miles an hour—is assured with completion of elimination trials for Saturday's race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

So keen was the competition that six cars that had met the minimum qualification speed of 90 miles per hour for 10 miles were eliminated. One or two of the fastest of those eliminated still have a very small chance of getting in the race, that opportunity being available only in the event any of the qualified machines fail to start when the long grind begins Saturday.

As the starting field was made up it consisted of 30 racers powered by eight-cylinder motors four by 16-cylinder plants and six of four cylinders each.

Five front-drive creations made the grade, among them that driven by Billy Arnold, Chicago, to victory in 1930, and the original front-drive of 1925, which finished second.

SPILL MARKS DEVON SHOW

DEVON, Pa., May 28.—A woman rider, up on Tipperary Tim, owned by William Nochol, of Sewickley, was thrown at a hurdle here yesterday in the third day's competition of the Devon Horse Show and County Fair. She was unhurt. The spill was the only one of the day.

Mickey Duris vs. Art Fraser, 10 rounds, and Bobby Richardson vs. Billy Flanagan, Jimmy Vaughn vs. Johnny Warner and Jimmy Young vs. Tony Bazzone, 6 rounds each, Auditorium, Johnstown.

Mickey Walker vs. Yale Okun (substitute), 10 rounds, and George Courtney vs. Willie Oster and Tug Phillips vs. Retampage Saguero, 8 rounds each, Mills Stadium, Chicago.

Midget Mike O'Dowd vs. Tracey Cox, 10 rounds, Terre Haute, Ind.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

They'll be doing the old Shylock act at Hickey Park, Millvale, at 3 p. m., today, when Battling Gizzy and Eddie Brannon, local lightweight rivals, weigh for their 10-round battle tonight.

If Brannon shows up weighing an ounce over the 135-pound limit stipulated in the articles, curfew shall not ring tonight—in other words, there'll be no fight. At least, that's what Able Witz, manager of Gizzy, says, although this may be merely ballyhoo.

Witz didn't want the fight in the first place. He thought he had Gizzy all set to fight Jack (Kid) Berg in the former junior-welterweight champion's next appearance here when Brannon, a Negro puncher of parts, popped up with a well-backed challenge for an elimination contest. Hickey Park needed a bout for tonight and forced Witz's hand, but not until after Able had made it clear that Brannon, who usually fights at around 137-38 pounds, must scale not more than 135 pounds or the bout would be off.

And, what's more, he's been sticking to his story.

NATURAL ELIMINATION

The fight is a natural elimination contest, and, with the personal followings of the principals and a break in the weather, the club ought to do right well by itself in the matter of a crowd and gate receipts.

Jimmy Guthrie, of Akron, boxes K. O. Redmond, of Detroit, in the eight-round semi-final Billy Holt, Negro welterweight, of Homewood, meets Jack Gillespie, of Detroit, in the second bout, and Jack Kelly, of North Lima, O., and Carl Cesko, of Uniontown, a pair of middleweight sockers, are in the opener, at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Johnstown also has a show carded for tonight, with Mickey Duris, of Johnstown, boxing Art Fraser, of Harrisburg, in the main event, and Billy Flanagan, of Braddock, mixing with the veteran Bobby Richardson, of Portage, in the semi-final.

Sam Langford and Joe Wolcott, great Negro boxers of another era, are appearing in a vaudeville sketch in Boston this week. Although Langford is virtually blind, they engage in three rounds of boxing as part of the act.

The Chicago Stadium, which was closed to boxing following last Monday night's Sharkey-Loughran-Gorilla Jones show, which drew only $12,000, played to $420,000 for 14 shows during the campaign, an average of $30,000.

Courtney also has scored wins over Joe Banovic, Billy Jones, Vincent Forgione, Jack Willis, Frank Moody, Phil (K. O.) Kaplan, Al Webster, Chuck Burns, Frankie Wine, Wop Manollan, Warnie Smith, Johnny Haystack Jack McVey, Matt Adgie, Dick Evans and Ernie Owens. Others he has boxed include Dave Shade, Lou Scozza, Rene De Vos, Tiger Payne, Leo Williams and Tait Littman. He has been boxing since 1924 and served as a sparring partner for Harry Greb when the latter was training for his first bout with Tiger Flowers.

Marty Gornick and Benny McArthur box the second bout at the Bowl, with Billy Holt and Tait Langford in the opener. The semi-final will be closed today.

Judge Kennedy rules the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling ring in Cleveland will be a "boxing exhibition" and not a "prize fight," and refuses to grant an injunction to prevent its being staged. He may be right, but the promoters will not take the tip and bill it as an exhibition, and you may lay to that.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 28.—If the Burgomeister of Luxemburg fails to declare a holiday today in honor of the town's foremost citizen, that official is lax in his duties. Take it from Manage Jewel Ens, of the Pirates, the achievements of Heinie Meine yesterday are worthy of the highest honors his principality can heap upon him.

"Heinie not only knocked the Cardinals off the National League perch," declared Ens, "but he has solved the unemployment situation in Luxemburg, where last night 20 extra bartenders were put on at the various home brew emporiums."

And that isn't all. Heinie owns a unique record in shut-out pitching. The hard-hitting champions of the National League have been blanked just twice this season, and the Prince of Luxemburg was the artist in both slab masterpieces.

REPEATS MASTERPIECE

Meine came back to his own province one month ago Tuesday, and upon that occasion he achieved a 1-to-0 victory. Yesterday he was back among the home folks, many of whom cheered as he recorded a 4-to-0 triumph. So you will realize there should be some joy in Luxemburg. And Jewel's crack about the unemployed may not miss the mark by two or three, either way.

Meine should be an inspiration for the Pirates today as they close one of the longest jaunts a Pittsburgh club has ever taken in the championship season. The third game of the series with the Cardinals is on, with each side having copped a game. Ervin Brame and Flint Rhem will oppose each other on the mound. The Pirates will hurry home at the conclusion of the game to be ready to take on the Cubs tomorrow.

Heinie held the Redbirds to eight hits as he pitched the Giants into first place. The day was hot, above 80, and there were times when the Dutchman showed signs of weakening under the heat, but he carried on like a star and one that had intelligence on every pitch.

COMOROSKY STARS

But all of Heinie's brilliance might have gone awry, but for circus plays by Adam Comorosky,

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BOSTON, May 28.—I see they are going to do something about the rotten umpiring we've been getting this season. Well, it's about time. Half the umpires when they are calling balls and strikes think they are taking the blindfold test. One afternoon in Cleveland a player lammed a home run to the centerfield fence. The umpire called it a foul because the ball landed below the belt of a guy that was printed on a safety razor sign. No fooling. A pitcher couldn't snap the sweat off his brow without having a balk called on him and the umpires were getting so tough they'd fine a catcher $5 for spitting on his glove.

M'LARNIN WINS OVER PETROLLE

NEW YORK, May 28.—(AP.)—Jimmy McLarnin, kingpin of the welterweights, turned loose all his punching powers last night to hammer into defeat an old tormentor, Billy Petrolle, the veteran gamester from Fargo, N. D.

Battered to the floor himself the first time they met, and all but knocked out, Jimmy came back to measure Petrolle with one long succession of left hooks to the head and rights that smashed on Billy's chin and left him weak and wobbly, but could not bring him to the floor. In the end McLarnin had to be content with the unanimous decision, but was amply revenged for the beating he took last November.

Petrolle fought a game, aggressive battle the kind of a fight that gave McLarnin so much trouble the last time, but last night he was rarely able to get past the short jarring left hooks that Jimmy exploded constantly to his face.

In the later rounds, as Billy tired, it seemed that he must go down, but just when the going was the worst, when it seemed that one more solid punch would finish the struggle, Petrolle always managed to find new strength.

A capacity crowd of 18,000 and gate receipts of $82,377 set a new "high" for 1931 and stimulated a new feeling of prosperity in Garden circles. It demonstrated once again that McLarnin is the greatest drawing card in New York rings for his weight and inches.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

By Robt. Jones.

American Open, British Open, American Amateur and Former British Amateur Champion

There probably is no shot in the game that bothers the average golfer so much as any shot into a head wind where distance is of importance. Of all the hazards likely to be encountered on a golf course, wind is the most formidable for nine-tenths of the people who play the game, because of its disturbing effect upon the mind. It's simply impossible, and understandably so, for an inexperienced player to maintain his mental equilibrium in the face of a strong gale.

Bobby Jones

There are two things which it is most natural to do in this situation; one to press the shot in order to make up the distance which the wind takes away, and the other, to try to hit the ball low so that it will escape the effect of the wind. The first of these, pressing, is, of course, fatal. The second is all right for the expert, but is usually bad for the ordinary player because he does not know how to accomplish his aim.

Now let's just stop and look at the thing for a moment. There is no way for me or anyone else to tell a man how he can hit a golf ball as far against the wind as he can with it, or in calm air; it simply cannot be done. So let's not consider that as a possibility.

If we suppose that a certain player, at his ultimate, can reach a 400-yard hole in two shots when there is no wind, then if the wind against takes 10 yards off each shot, his limit will be reduced to 380 yards and the 400-yard hole will be beyond his reach. Most likely if the hole actually measured 20 yards more than his limit, in calm air, he would not worry about reaching it. Then let him regard the wind as adding just so many yards to the hole.

DIRECTION IMPORTANT

I prefer to regard the wind hazard in just this way—to treat it as part of the golf course—and to direct my efforts toward doing the best I can with respect to it. The main thing I think about is holding the ball on line. I try to get as much distance as I possibly can with safety, but I never try to do more than I can. Direction is always of the first importance, and since an opposing wind magnifies errors in striking, it allows fewer liberties than could be taken at any other time.

I think the best advice, when hitting a shot into a breeze, is to take things even a bit more quietly than usual, the very opposite of pressing. Primarily, of course, the reason for this is to give better direction, but it will be found also, surprisingly perhaps, that in this way the actual loss of distance will be lessened.

It is a most natural thought that a very low drive flies best into a breeze. As a matter of fact there is one thing which is of far more importance than elevation, and that is, the character of the flight of the ball.

SWEEP STROKE BEST

Those who yield to the inclination to hit the ball sharply down into a wind, soon discover that this kind of a stroke does not actually keep the shot low. It merely starts it out close to the ground and when it travels a distance it begins to rise on the wind, and when it drops it comes straight down. It has no ability whatever to bore its way along; it is simply at the mercy of even a light breeze.

The best stroke is the one which takes the ball almost squarely in the back, while the clubhead is moving just about parallel to the ground. It applies only a very little backspin to the ball, and the more it can be made a sweep instead of a sharp hit the better.

Halfertys Give Tech Father and Son Act

Guy Halferty, former Carnegie Tech track star and for several years coach of the Tartan trackers, aims to provide an exception to the rule that the son of a renowned parent seldom becomes proficient in the sport which brought his father fame.

Jimmy now is a freshman. He aims to be Tech's varsity representative in the quarter-mile next season.

MACKS DEFEAT YANKS; NATS COP PAIR

Associated Press.

It's been a long, hard haul for John McGraw and his New York Giants, but they finally have reached the top of the National League percentage column.

After having flirted with the leadership for a week, during which common sense at times told them they were ahead but the figures told them differently, they removed the last doubt by trimming the Boston Braves yesterday, 7 to 4, while the St. Louis Cardinals were receiving a blanking from Pittsburgh, 4 to 0.

The Giants were out in front by a game and a half today, despite the fact they were several points behind the Cards before yesterday's momentous proceedings. It is the first time the Redbirds have been dislodged since the race began.

HOGAN HITS HOMER

Frank Hogan, husky Giant catcher, and Heinie Meine, Pittsburgh righthander, collaborated to change the complexion of the race. Hogan, better known to his public as Shanty, warped one of Socks Seibold's choicest curves into the stands with two on base to climax a four-run Giant rally in the third inning, from which the Braves never recovered.

Meine set the Cardinals down with eight scattered hits, all singles, to hang up his fourth straight victory. Meine is the only pitcher who has held the Cards scoreless this season, and he has turned the trick twice.

Boston's third straight loss to the Giants cost Bill McKechnie's hopefuls their hold on third place. The Chicago Cubs, by downing Cincinnati, 8 to 4, moved in.

After having seen their lengthy winning streak clipped the previous day, the Philadelphia Athletics got right back on the victory trial with a 6-to-5 decision over the Yankees. Bing Miller doubled with the bases loaded in the eighth to score Cochrane and Simmons with the winning runs.

NATS TAKE SECOND

Walt Johnson's Washington Senators took advantage of the opportunity to move into second place. Their double victory over the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 3 and 4 to 3, put them a game ahead of the Yankees and four and a half games off the top.

The Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader with Detroit by scores of 5 to 4 and 10 to 1.

The Cleveland Indians produced a similar punch in the ninth round to take their third straight from St. Louis, 5 to 4.

GIRL GOLFER BEATS CHAMP

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 28.—(AP.)—Frances Snyder, youthful golfer from the Apawamis Club, Rye, N. Y., established herself as a serious threat to the remaining contenders for the women's metropolitan gold championship by defeating Martha Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., the defending champion, 2 up, in their second-round match yesterday.

The other favorites, Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, N. Y., and Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, of Flushing, N. Y., the former New Orleans star, who won the qualifying medal, also advanced to the quarter-final rounds.

Mrs. Jenkins	Butler	120-27	93

A dinner match at Greensburg and medal play for women at St. Clair are the only other events on today's program.

Yesterday a great time was had at the Shannopin Country Club, the teams of the home club and Highland battling in the first half of the 36-hole annual Grogan Cup match. The Highland team copped the first 18 holes, playing under the Nassau system. The second match will be played June 24 over the Highland layout.

The score of yesterday's man-to-man play was 105 to 99, and it was the closest match in the history of the competition, which is now in its seventh year.

The contest was nip and tuck throughout, until the last few foursomes, neither club being able to hold an advantage of more than two or three points.

JACOBS LAUDS DRAWEDICT

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, May 28.—(AP.)—Joe Jacobs, manager for Max Schmeling, recognized as the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, arrived at the training camp here yesterday from New York and expressed himself as "well pleased" with the new rule of the Cleveland Boxing Commission against draw decisions.

"It gives positive assurance of a winner and a loser," he said. "In the old days many close fights were called draws when such rulings were unfair to the challengers."

Max has not yet started intensive training for his titular bout with Stribling at Cleveland, July 3, but intends to do so tomorrow. Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, a sparring partner, has arrived at the camp.

BUCCOS, CARDS END SERIES

and L. Waner. In my years of writing baseball I have not seen a catch to equal the diving capture by the Polish Flier on Watkins' short fly in the third. Many great fielders have made diving catches, but I have not seen one wherein a star slides along on his stomach for something like 10 feet before catching the ball in one hand. Words cannot describe the Comorosky feat. I am sorry you cannot see it in the movies.

L. Waner's trick was not as difficult, but it carried more significance. Meine was weary after running the bases in the seventh. The sweltering heat had him in some little grief, as he pitched to the Redbirds in the stretch inning. Bad Man Hafey led off with a single and there was much commotion in the Pittsburgh bullpen as Douthit came to bat, despite the four Pirate runs.

The centerfielder drove a hot liner to the left-center pocket. It looked like trouble for the Buccos as Little Lloyd took out after the drive. He nailed it while almost on his face, and without getting set he let fly with a perfect throw to Gus Suhr and Hafey was doubled.

Ben Sankey, Meine and L. Waner slapped out three successive singles in the seventh with two out to add a safety tally, and the Buccos scored another in the ninth on Sankey's safe bunt a wild pitch and Brother Lloyd's single.

Duquesne Track Meet Draws Stars

Entries received for the Duquesne Republican Club Memorial Day track and field meet at the public school athletic field in Duquesne, include several of the outstanding trackmen of the Greater Pittsburgh district.

Such stars as Thomas Coulter, of Carnegie Tech; Leonard Monheim, Odell Pryor, of Ford City; Henry Schnelbach, of the P. A. A.; Edgar Work, also of the P. A. A., and George Chermonitz, of the Union A. C., will compete in the 100-yard handicap.

Now that the weather man has seen fit to brighten things a little, sandlotters will get a little more enthused over the great races that are being staged in the various loops in the district.

Magee Field, out at the end of Beechview boulevard, will see one of the leading games of the evening's schedule, when Bill Stuhlfire and his Rieck-McJunkins try to set the Baltimore and Ohio nine, led by Frank Rush, in the loss column and keep in step with the undefeated Reliance Life nine.

As the games go along it seems as if Riecks and the Lifers are going to fight it out for the first half title.

RIECKS STRENGTHENED

Riecks are greatly strengthened this season. Last year Stuhlfire went along with one pitcher, Laboon carrying the burden, but now the popular manager has Eddie Imhoff and two others as starting moundsmen.

Two games will be played in the West Penn loop. The Martin club, of Garfield, will play its first game on the road, taking a crack at Reliance Life at the Homewood playgrounds. Swissvale Community, under the leadership of Ed Walsh, crosses the Munhall Bridge to clash with Jack Fertig's undefeated Aces.

The Aces are playing to record crowds this season, and the fans from around the Steel town are peeking at a fine team. The Aces are playing wonderful baseball.

In the Steel City League, the East End Cardinals meet the Caruso Club at Hays Field.

BUICKS, CIVICS CLASH

The battle of the North Side will be waged at the Salt Works when the Civics and Buicks tangle. The Buicks put on a great performance on Tuesday when Dunsky's outfit came from behind to beat J. L. Thomas.

Tommy Carson, formerly one of the most popular sandlot pilots in the district, got a big kick out of the Buicks win on Tuesday. Many of the boys on the Buicks played with Carson in his managerial days, and he likes to see the old fighting spirit on display. Carson also has a warm spot for Sammy Leon, who also pitched many games for Carson, and the latter feels that Sammy is the hard-luck pitcher of the district.

Book Shoe and Fintex meet at Olympia Park in a benefit game for Ziggy Harrison, former star for both teams, who is confined to his home with illness.

MONONGAHELA, May 28.—One of the features of the Memorial Day program at Monongahela will be a polo game, to be staged at Downer Field at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Vang team of poloists will clash with the 308th Cavalry team, champions of the Pittsburgh Polo League.

183-YARD PUTT

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 28.—(INS.)—J. P. McCormick has a new one for the books today. He swatted a golf ball 183 yards uphill for a hole in one, using a putter.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, AUTEUIL, France, May 28.—(AP.)—Betty Nuthall, England's leading woman tennis player, today defeated Helen Jacobs, of California, in straight sets in their quarter-final match of the French hard court tennis championships. The scores were 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Nuthall, champion of the United States, gave a dazzling exhibition to defeat the California girl, outhitting, outmaneuvering and completely dominating Miss Jacobs.

Miss Jacobs played on the baseline almost entirely, venturing to the net only a few times and then disastrously.

32 ELIGIBLE FOR DERBY

LONDON, May 28.—(AP.)—Thirty-two of England's ranking 3-year-olds remained in the Epsom Downs Derby to be decided June 3 with the announcement of the final acceptances today.

The complete list of eligibles follows:

Several Verona Stars May Quit

Dissension in the ranks may force several star performers of the Verona baseball club to resign from that team, according to reports in local baseball circles.

Tom Gettings, star hurler of the team, has quit, and will finish the season with the Homewood-Brushton club. Lafferty is another who is considering leaving the Verona team.

OUTSIDERS INVITED TO CONFERENCE MEET

ALLEGHENY, GROVERS MAY COMPETE

By JESS CARVER

Allegheny, Grove City and the Dukes have been invited to take part in the annual Tri-State Conference track and field championships at Reeves Stadium, College Hill, Saturday. The affair is supposed to be strictly a conference meet, but aside from the odds-on favorite, Geneva, the class of competition is a bit tepid.

The invitation to Grove City and Allegheny as well as Duquesne probably was sponsored with two ideas in mind: the first being to boost the gate receipts and the second to improve on the caliber of competition. Westminster, undoubtedly, will wind up in second place Saturday when the boys get around to compiling the final points score, with Bethany, Waynesburg and Thiel flopping about far in the ruck.

SCORING A QUESTION

Just how the scoring will be handled if the Grovers and Methodists and local Irish enter teams is a question. They hardly can call it a conference meet with outsiders figuring in the point-getting, and certainly they can't ask the outsiders to run for the fun of it alone.

With things apparently destined to go its way, Geneva is planning to spread out its first place production over as many individuals as possible. Fair Thomas, the Negro sprint star, who holds the conference title in the 100, 220 and 440, is only scheduled to defend his furlong and quarter-mile laurels.

SAUER IN SPRINTS

The Genevans have an A-1 sprinter in Sauer, of Akron, who'll be entered in the century and 220.

Spencer, the Negro high jumper, who thinks nothing of high jumping 6 feet 5 inches, will also do a bit of timber-topping, being entered in both high and low hurdle races. He's almost sure pop to break the conference record in the jump.

AUTO TRACKS MADE READY

With repairs on the track rapidly nearing completion, practically everything is ready for the auto races at the Bridgeville Board Speedway on Memorial Day. Although entries closed last night, several wires were received from drivers from distant cities requesting that their entries be recognized, and Fred McCarthy, the starter, decided that all applications which were placed in the mails yesterday would be accepted. More than 30 entries have been received.

Antone Ponikvar

Qualifications trials will be held the morning of the race. McCarthy plans to limit each race to 10 cars, and many of the visiting drivers want to appear in more than one race.

The entry of Antone Ponikvar, of Cleveland, has added another star to the list. Ponikvar entered the Indianapolis race this year, but failed to have his car finished in time for the trials.

The Monongahela dirt track promises to be lightning fast for the 100-mile race scheduled there on Saturday, unless a heavy rain falls in the meantime. The surface has been drying out gradually since the downpour of the early part of the week.

Officials Named For Oakmont Races

Officials have been chosen for the outboard motorboat races to be staged on the Allegheny River at Oakmont on Memorial Day. Press Anderson will be referee; John Jay Burke, chief judge; Col. Harry C. Fry, starter; Jimmy MacKay, chief timer; C. L. Kletzly, scorer, and Jack Cooper, announcer.

GUYS WALLOPED BY LEADERS

Pitcher Densmore turned in another victory for the Cumberland Colts in the Middle Atlantic League yesterday and the Colts walloped Charleroi, 14 to 5. Densmore's fine hurling has been one of the big factors in the climb of the Colts into the lead position. Yesterday he limited the Guys to five hits.

Altoona almost won a ball game, but a three-run rally in the ninth inning enabled Scottdale to nose out an 8-to-7 win. Beckley lost a close one to Charleston, 4 to 3, although outhitting the Senators by three blows.

Johnstown turned the tables on Wheeling, winning, 6 to 2, and Fairmont slugged out a 10-to-2 victory over Hagerstown. Clarksburg defeated Huntington, 5 to 4.

Pitt Cards Floor Game in Colorado

BOULDER, Col., May 28.—(INS.)—The University of Colorado basketball team will meet the University of Pittsburgh here December 26, according to an announcement made today by Walter Franklin, graduate manager of athletics.

Josh Clarke Would Be Coast Loop Ump

LOS ANGELES, May 28.—(INS.)—Josh Clarke, brother of Fred Clarke, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today was seeking a position as umpire in the Pacific Coast League.

Pittsburgher Loses At Washington Park

CHICAGO, May 28.—(AP.)—Pittsburgher, one of the disappointments of the Kentucky Derby, made his first start since the Churchill Downs classic at Washington Park yesterday, but lost a close decision to Mrs. Emil Denemark's Burning Up in the Windy City handicap.

The 3-year-old son of Black Toney stepped the mile in 1:38 2-5 for his fifth consecutive victory, four of which were won in the Chicago area. He was given a fine ride by Jockey R. Jones, beating Pittsburgher, the favorite, by one-half a length.

Race Fans Advised To Follow Route 22

Pittsburgh motorists who are going to the Memorial Day 500-mile auto race classic at the Indianapolis Speedway are advised by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh to use the following route:

Take U. S. 22 from Pittsburgh, through Steubenville and Cadiz, to Cambridge, O.; there take U. S. 40, the National highway, through Zanesville, Columbus, Springfield and Richmond, Ind., to Indianapolis. This route, 350 miles long, is by far the shortest and the best between Pittsburgh and Indianapolis.

Charleston Releases Five, Signs Pair

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 28.—(AP.)—Manager Dick Hoblitzell, of the Charleston Senators, has announced the release of five players and the acquisition of two others.

The new men are Vernon Mackey, catcher, formerly with Huntington, and Gordon Johnson, outfielder, who started the season with Charleston, but later went to Huntington. Those released were Chuck Nalbock, infielder; Tiny Weaver, left handed pitcher; Kenneth Smith, catcher; Joe Fillingham, outfielder, and Scrappy Creath, infielder.

SLIDING SCALE RENTS IDLE CORNERS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Each phase of the business cycle, even episodes of monotonous depression, creates opportunities for executives who are alert.

For example, instead of joining the wailing chorus of pessimists, a New York chain store organization is taking advantage of the subnormal real estate situation, and is inducing landlords to give them desirable vacant corners on a sliding scale rental basis, which is to be determined by a percentage of gross sales of the store.

Mr. Rukeyser

This precludes the hazard of an uneconomic rental, assuring the chain merchant that the proportion which he lays out for rent will be such as existing trade volume will readily sustain. For their parts, landlords prefer such an agreement to holding empty locations, particularly since the chain store organization is an aggressive advertiser, and is showing a marked forward trend in sales and profits.

PROFITS BY ADS

Under the new aggressive management of Charles G. Guth, Loft's has extricated itself from the red, and its management indicates that it has been showing a profit each month since August, 1930. The candy chain has tapped a new source of reader interest in advertising through featuring the personalities of minor store executives. This has had the effect not only of interesting the public, which likes to read about people, but also has improved the morale of the organization, which is trying to live up to the standards set forth by the optimistic ad-writers. In these red ink days, it is profitable to observe and analyze the methods of the exceptional profit-makers which have succeeded in bucking the adverse trend.

For the third time in its history, the business conduct committee of the New York Stock Exchange has asked member firms to submit daily reports on their short position. This is obviously a gesture to offset demoralizing raids.

DISAPPROVE RAIDING

Officially, the Stock Exchange approves of so-called legitimate short selling, but disapproves of bear raiding. The difference between the two speculative arts is a matter of individual interpretation and the business conduct committee has much leeway in deciding.

The inquiry is probably intended to notify the wicked bears that the authorities think that they have been overdoing things, and that they should act circumspectly if they would avoid being spanked. Perhaps the exchange, which should be neutral in the matter of prices, is seeking to give some psychological support to the market. In November, 1929, its similar gesture marked the starting point of a sustained technical rally, which was nourished also by President Hoover's White House conferences with captains of industry and labor leaders.

April Payrolls Up In Chicago District

CHICAGO, May 28.—The monthly business conditions report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, which will be issued May 31, will say that April data of reporting Seventh District establishments disclosed a reversal of the slight upward trend in manufacturing employment and payrolls which obtained during February and March.

In non-manufacturing phases moderate gains were recorded—the first in number of men since last August and in their earnings since September. In the aggregate of all groups employment remained practically the same, while payrolls increased slightly, the report will state.

Wholesale Volume Dropped in April

NEW YORK, May 28.—April sales of reporting wholesale firms in the New York Federal Reserve district declined 16.8 per cent from those of the corresponding month of 1930. Chain store sales were 3.3 per cent under those of a year ago, and department store sales were 8 per cent lower, according to the monthly review of credit and business conditions by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Sales of wholesale firms showed a seasonal decrease in a majority of lines, the review said.

J. F. Miller Heads Bank of Pittsburgh

The board of directors of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., announced that John F. Miller, vice chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, has been elected chairman of the board of directors of the bank. The board also announced that a six months' leave of absence from duty was granted to Harrison Nesbit, president of the bank.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Fluctuate — Lone Star Gas Heavy

BEAR CROWD'S UNEASINESS INCREASES

Market Unable to Show Steady Rallying Power Despite Short Covering

NEW YORK, May 28. (AP.)—Bears showed further uneasiness in today's stock market, but share prices were unable to show sustained rallying power.

Shares moved up 1 to 3 points after a brief decline in the first hour only to encounter further selling pressure after midday. Resistance to the downward movement soon developed, however. The fact that the stock exchange questionnaire on bear selling must be returned to the committee on business conduct today presumably inspired a wave of short covering around midday.

United States Steel dropped 2 points to another new low close to 90, regained its loss, sold off and recovered again.

Opinion as to the extent of the short interest is still highly mixed. If the stock exchange discovers a greatly over-extended short interest, Wall Street will look for a sharp rebound. The results of the questionnaire presumably will not be made public for some time, if at all, and its showing probably will be apparent only in the action of the market.

Several brokers are warning their customers to beware of the short side at this time, pointing out that winthin 10 weeks, the autumn stimulus to business will be felt. On the other hand, many of the second quarter earnings reports will be unfavorable, and numerous dividend cuts are expected so there is a tendency to look for little more than an up and down market.

Strength of Westinghouse was attributed to news of a $9,000,000 order from Pennsylvania Railroad, and sharp cutting of expenses. Warner Brothers responded to a report that the Warners had provided a $5,000,000 loan from their personal fortunes to obviate new financing. Motion picture companies have been drastically cutting expenses, and Warner Brothers and Paramount, which have been at odds for about a year, are understood to be renewing their interbooking arrangement for showing each other's releases.

Sterling exchange firmed, as rumors that the Bank of England make another cut in its discount rate proved false. Foreign bonds were again under pressure. A private cable from a large commercial bank in Berlin was reassuring.

Call money held at 1½ per cent, and it was widely reported that large banks have agreed to hold it at that level. Nevertheless, there were still outside offerings at 1 per cent.

P. R. R. FIGHTS I. C. C. ORDER

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—(AP.)—The ennsylvania Railroad Company and the Pennsylvania Company today filed petitions asking the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals to review and set aside the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring them to divest themselves of Lehigh Valley and Wabash Railroad stock.

The commission issued its order last December, on the ground that the holding of the stock was in violation of the Clayton anti-trust act. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Company are said to own 48 per cent of the Wabash stock and about 30 per cent of the Lehigh Valley.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 28.—Grains advanced early today after a wavering start. Drought complaints from Canada continued, and fears were expressed that much winter wheat from the Texas panhandle northward to Nebraska would have to depend mostly on surface moisture as a result of premature aging of roots. Opening ⅜@½c off to ¼c up, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started at ¼c decline to ½@⅝c advance and subsequently averaged higher.

Call Loan Rate Is Pegged at 1½ Per Cent

NEW YORK, May 28.—(AP.) An agreement to refrain from loaning call money on stock exchange collateral at less than the current renewal rate of 1½ per cent has been reached by a number of leading New York banks.

The move was designed to keep the call money rate stable by preventing the shifting of out-of-town bank and corporation money with consequent fluctuations in the call rate, such as occurred recently when a 1 per cent renewal rate was posted by the New York Stock Exchange.

End of Present Selling Movement in Sight, Bankers Say

Wall street's chief complaint is that the market still lacks anything in the way of aggressive support which would indicate that the banking interests are satisfied the end of the present liquidating movement is in sight. Bear selling, it is admitted, has been playing a part in the market's decline, but liquidation though moderate in volume has been constant. Inability of the market to hold a rally for more than a few hours is the really disturbing influence for the reason that this condition merely aggravates nervousness and impels fresh liquidation on the dips. Keen observers are of the opinion that the steady dribbling of liquidation will cease only when the market demonstrates its ability to rally for three or four days and hold the improvement thus tending to quiet fears of holders of stocks.

Based on results so far during the period, net profit of Air Reduction Company for the second quarter will exceed the $1,019,040, or $1.21 a share on 841,288 shares reported for the first quarter. It is likely net may run as high as $1.40 a share for the second quarter.

President Summerfield, of Gotham Hosiery Company, states earnings in the first four months of 1931, after all charges, were more than sufficient to cover the $7 preference dividends for the full year. The first quarterly is normally the poorest period of the year. Cash on hand is over $4,000,000, compared to $3,400,000 at the end of 1930. Inventories which were reduced from $4,000,000 to around $1,000,000 last year, is being maintained at the low level.

Rumors have been heard in some quarters that Kroger in May may practically reverse the showing of April when a decrease of 1.8 per cent in sales was shown. In other words, it would not surprise many if a small gain in volume was reported. The four-month period for which sales will be reported ended Saturday and a statement is likely shortly. With the number of stores reduced 6 per cent or 7 per cent and prices of merchandise down 10 per cent to 15 per cent, an even break or a slight gain in the period would be considered favorable.

Sales of Sears-Roebuck for the four weeks ended May 21 were off 9-10 of 1 per cent from the corresponding 1930 period. This showing was in line with expectations in responsible quarters and is favorably construed. The decrease compared with reductions of 5.8 per cent, 6.8 per cent, 14.8 per cent and 14.1 per cent in the four preceding periods this year. Little change in earnings from last year has been shown thus far in 1931, according to Chicago advices.

Executives of some of the largest commission houses report that customers who had been carrying stocks in their accounts have bought them outright, and are carrying credit balances. Usually, in situations such as this, the public comes into the market on a scale during reactions, but this time outsiders with funds are not showing any interest in the market. The various houses are not advising clients to pick up stocks, continuing to favor a side line position temporarily.

Coal Cleaning Process Is Studied Here

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

LEADING COAL OPERATORS in the Pittsburgh district are experimenting with a new process for cleaning coal which promises to have a revolutionary effect on the industry. For the first time petroleum is being used as an agent for the elimination of ash and sulphur to produce a more efficient fuel for metallurgical and other purposes.

The new system for coal cleaning has been developed by the Trent Process Corporation of New York. Experimental plants handling small tonnages are being operated by several coal producers. One organization is using a small model which is an almost exact reproduction of a full size cleaning unit which may be built in the future.

The underlying principal was discovered accidently about 10 years ago during experiments with the possibilities of using powdered coal as a fuel in internal combustion engines. Since that time constant effort has been devoted to the perfection of the process for commercial purposes.

High Efficiency Claimed

EXCEPTIONAL EFFICIENCY and more satisfactory results are claimed for the new process than have been obtained from existing washing and dry cleaning coal plants. Sulphur content can be reduced to about one-half per cent and ash can be cut down to about 5 per cent. The Trent process accomplishes this without any appreciable loss of the carbon of the fuel.

Officials of the Trent Process company also state that it will be commercially possible to make a satisfactory fuel from a large part of the mine refuse which is now left in huge piles around the mines as a total waste product. One local mine producing about 5,000 tons of coal a day must also handle about 1,100 tons of refuse. The saving which would be possible if a high-grade fuel could be made of this waste material at a low cost can readily be imagined.

Coal Is Crushed

IN THE TRENT PROCESS the coal is first crushed to a fine powder mixed with water. The material is then pumped into an agitator and is mixed with either a crude oil or a fuel oil.

The secret of the process lies in the fact that the oil has a peculiar affinity for the coal. Study under a microscope has shown that the oil envelopes each particle of carbon and appears to become amalgamated with it. It has no affinity for the ash.

After the material leaves the agitator the particles of coal amalgamated with oil settle to the bottom and the water carrying the ash and showing no trace of oil or carbon rises to the top. The particles of coal cling together and form small beads.

Removed By Conveyor

A CONVEYOR THEN REMOVES the coal from the settling compartment and allows any remaining water to drain off. The small black beads of fuel as they leave the process are called "caviar" by the engineers conducting the experiments for want of any better descriptive name.

After leaving the first cleaning unit the coal is again treated in either one or two identical units depending on the type of coal being cleaned and the degree of purity desired. The size of the beads of coal can be controlled by the proportion of oil used. On some tests beads up to two inches in diameter have been produced.

As a general rule the oil amounts to about 15 per cent of the finished fuel. When the fuel is used in by-product coke ovens the oil greatly increases the yield of by-products such as gas and motor fuel. The oil industry is watching the process as eagerly as coal producers because of the possibility of developing a new market.

Ramon Succeeds in Getting Money From Jenny

CHAPTER XIX.

The first time Jenny received Ramon behind the closed door of her boudoir, a thousand misgivings assailed her. The creak of a chair was sufficient to stiffen her in his arms; a footstep on a stair startling her eyes into a listening expression, the pupils widening and full of dreads.

"Jenny, that is not nice! Of what are you afraid? Cannot two people have tea in privacy? Why do you not lock the door, if in your great big house you have no privacy?"

"No. No. There must be nothing like that."

"But you make it like that with your nervousness."

"I want your coming here to be the most natural thing in the world. I am going to begin to make it a habit to have afternoon cocktails always served in here. That will make it seem less strange. It is a nice room, isn't it, Ramon—all these soft yellows—"

Sends Him Money

"Sweet."

"You know that I do."

"Then what are we going to do about it?"

"I don't know, Ramon."

"Why? Of course not, Ramon—"

"It is not fair to me."

"I know that, Ramon. There must be a way."

"There must be a way—for me to live—if I am to go on neglecting my work this way—"

Once, when he pressed her thus, she had unwittingly asked him, "What work?" and filled his eyes with reproach that looked near to tears. His stalkings in his fashion around the subject of money somehow sullied perfection.

"I have given up everything, Jenny. My teaching, my—"

"I know you have, Ramon."

"I love giving up everything; but it has its practical side, dearest, since we live in a practical world."

"I know that. There is a thousand dollar bill in registered mail for you now, dearest."

It was like her to see that these transactions took place easily, in currency. He kissed her.

"That is for the thought," he said; "the money itself is horrible, practical necessity."

"That is for the kiss," she said, kissing him back.

He would have slid easily off this sand-bar of a subject, but the procession of her thoughts matched the fact that she lay in his arms and his smooth olive pallor was hers to lift up a hand and stroke.

"Not if we do something about it, to see that it is not so."

It occurred to her, as she lay there, that everything there was to do about it she would never dare to do. And yet it was sweet to contemplate doing it.

In just such proportion as her sense of disloyalty toward Rarick grew her efforts to reawaken some sort of a relationship between them began asserting itself. With the immemorial psychology of the guilty wife, she developed an entirely new attitude of solicitude where her husband was concerned.

She began the unprecedented business of leaving notes explaining her whereabouts on those evenings when she was not going to be at home when he arrived. Elaborate, unclever, and superfluous notes of evasion. She no longer pretended to be asleep mornings, while he moved about the bedroom. It was with difficulty that she held herself in leash, in order not to overdo these efforts to placate herself.

Fears Gossip

As it was, Rarick, always obtuse, only dimly noticed, and was not seriously impressed one way or another. Jenny would think ahead for five or ten minutes how best to casually introduce the name of Ramon into her conversation, so that if rumor by mischance should come wagging, he would cast it off as a distorted version of something she had herself told him.

When she finally did trump up a manner to remark casually that Ramon was a dear boy, absolutely invaluable as a last-minute escort, so good-natured and harmless, it was to fall on what amounted to unheeding ears.

The anomaly of her position, as she lay there in Ramon's arms, smote and smote her. A woman could want to remain secure in her marriage and yet be passionately in love with some one not her husband. It was possible to want two things desperately at the same time. Not that Jenny was in love with her husband, but she was in love with wanting to remain secure as his wife.

"I want to arrange my life, Ramon—ours. I should say—so that while we are waiting for our ultimate happiness, everything connected with us shall seem casual."

"You are the one to be considered, Jenny. It is heaven to be with you—to drop everything—my work—but a man must live."

"There must be no gossip about us, Ramon. Even if my children are grown, Ramon, I am an ideal to them."

"So are you to me."

"You are good."

Secret Nook

"Thank God, though, I have reared them with sophisticated heads on their sensible shoulders."

"It is you who are not sophisticated, my love."

"I never want to grow sufficiently sophisticated, my Ramon, not to love our love as the dearest thing in life. Jennifer would be the first to want me to grasp at that part of life which has so nearly passed me by."

"I would like, Jenny, to look up the fellow who has that paragraph about her in this week's Town Tattle—about the affair at the Edgertons—and punch his—"

"Nothing like that, Ramon! Coming from you, it would look obvious. If only her father doesn't see it! It will all be forgotten in a week, but meanwhile it is awful. Town talk. They say Berry had to marry Leslie to save her from a scandal and that Leslie had to announce it to save herself from Jennifer. . . . Ramon, what was that noise?"

"How nervous you are, my Jenny! Only something creaking."

"I must get my household accustomed to taking my tea hour for granted. It will make it so much easier for us, Ramon. Everything in my life hereafter will revolve around that, Ramon."

"Jenny, how soon will we have a nook somewhere — ours — alone . . . ?"

She hid her face in her hands.

"Soon."

"How soon?"

"Soon."

"You remember, Jenny, what you promised?"

"What?"

"I am to fix up our nook—and bring you to it after it is all complete."

"Yes."

"It is hard to say what I must say now, Jenny, except that, between us, everything must be said."

"Yes. Yes."

"I want to do that nook terribly. I would be doing something for—us."

"You darling."

"And yet, you see, my hands are tied. I do not do it."

She knew what was coming, and bated her breath for it, because she did not want it to come.

She lay in silence against his coat.

"Does it offend you to have me say that, Jenny?"

"No—only I hate the talk of money between us——"

"I know, dearest, but it must be said. I have given up my——"

"There is the thousand in the mail——"

"But I must live, Jenny. Besides, what is a thousand? You would not want me to build you a nook that was not worthy of our love."

"It isn't that he ever questions what I draw. But a conspicuously large amount is noticeable when I have nothing to show for it, and he is sure to think I am indulging the children against his wishes."

"Surely you have money of your own."

Ramon Disapproves

"Just a drawing account. I've never bothered. He is generous."

"That is his one difficult spot, Ramon."

Was she one of the horrible, wattled, painted women, as in the notorious case of the dowager, Mrs. Emanie Bursilap, who at seventy years, after her own youth had fled from her as if in disgust, still kept young boys in luxury for the sake of maintaining the delusion of that departed youth?

Was this thing between her and Ramon no better than that?

"Dear Ramon, everything will come out all right."

"I love to hear you say that Jenny," he said, and crushed kisses against her eyes.

This time, of the volition of a force that was stronger than her fears, she reached out and turned the key in the door.

DAILY TRUE STORY

What's Yours?

Beer Hijackers Frustrated By Truck Driver

"What's yours?"

"Nope, a girl 20 ain't exactly new, is she? You're fresh, aren't you?"

"Me? Say, lissen, beautiful, a guy that merely says a girl is new ain't so fresh, is he? You knew what I meant."

Joe Hickson grinned.

Della Holt smiled back just a faint, friendly little smile.

"I'm just on the job here, if that's what you mean. What kind of a place is this?"

Della, first day on her new job as waitress in the Half-Way Restaurant, high in the Jersey mountains, went to fill other orders.

She pocketed the dime he had left under the edge of his plate.

On Joe's second visit he said, "Hello, beautiful — how about some ham an' eggs and a cuppa java?"

"If it's an order, that's all right, if you're just inquiring to be polite, I'll say they're quite nicely, thank you."

Joe eyed her.

"It's a clean line of chatter, anyway."

"Have I slopped over?"

Again Della smiled.

It was on his third stop that Joe said "Hello beautiful, how's the beef stew today?"

"The London broil is swell," Della said, gravely.

Business Fair

"I got a name, too—my monicker is Joe Hickson."

Della went away and came back with the order.

"Mine is Della," she said, rather shyly.

"Great!"

And so it went for many weeks.

Della always waited on Joe because he always took a table in her corner. She would come over and say, "Hello Joe, what's yours?"

She would tip him off if he ordered something she knew was not so good.

He always left her the little thin dime, but then most of them left nickels. There was a fair trade from hungry tourists, but a steady trade from the express men and truck drivers.

Joe didn't show up for three days. Della missed him and she noticed that another man was driving his big truck.

"What has happened to Mr. Hickson?" Della asked him timidly.

Della nodded. She didn't want him to notice the tears that had come to her eyes so suddenly.

The fifth day Joe was back again.

He seemed quieter, but he smiled a little at her and she noticed that he was wearing a black necktie, otherwise he was quite the same, khaki trousers and leather jerkin.

Della went over to him.

"I heard, Joe—Gee, I'm sorry—I know, I lost mine a year ago," she said quietly.

Della patted his shoulder. "What's yours——"

He was still trying to speak.

Della Understands

After that things went on about as usual.

The hours were long for Della, the pay small, and the tips nothing to write home about, as she told Joe, if she had a home to write to.

Joe got to talking about himself a little. He could speak of the mother that was gone.

Joe came in one day, heard Della ask "What's yours," gave his order and said, "Three more paydays and I'm quittin' th' job."

"That's swell, Joe — I — I'm awful glad."

And she was, and she knew that she was going to be mighty blue and shed some tears in her attic room at the Smith farm.

There came one of those foggy, dismal days that turned into a drizzle of rain—cold, chilly rain.

Three men, young and rough looking, came in just as they were closing the place.

Della was tired, but a customer was a customer, and the boss was still back of the counter, so she took their order.

Overhears Conversation

One said to this chap, "Pipe down, we can't stand for no trouble, that Jane might bawl you out."

"Yesh, and what then?"

"The big guy over there might phone for a state cop, then how we gonna pull this stunt?"

"That's so."

She wouldn't have heeded them if she hadn't heard one of them say, "Aw hell, Hickson won't do nothin', we'll have his mitts up—that's all there is to it."

Della brought more bread and butter and hovered around as if anxious to give good service and get a nice tip. She didn't hear much. One did say, "Naw, drive right through with it and toin in to Riley—it's big coin."

"Della was worried. She watched the men get into a small and ancient car and drive through the night drizzle of rain.

Suddenly she guessed—Joe would be coming through with his great truck of beer, and they were planning to hold him up just before daylight—that would be over on Cherry Hill, for she knew how long it took Joe to make the trip.

Her rheumatism would come back.

But she could coast down, and if she kept right at it she would pass wherever these men were going to lay for Joe.

Tells About Men

It was the car, parked, no lights, but the men were inside, smoking.

She got on the bicycle and coasted. If the men saw her she might get away, as it was a long coast.

She coasted silently down the black road through the rain. Not a sound when she passed their car.

Faster and faster, she scarcely dared use the brakes for fear of being thrown—then the noise of a truck.

Stella managed to stop then by riding over to a soft shoulder of the highway.

She placed the bicycle across the road. Joe might be driving without lights. But he had lights on and saw the wheel. He was going to step on it and beat it when he saw Della.

He made the detour and left Della at the farm.

Two days later he was back at the restaurant.

"Hello, Joe, what's yours?" asked Della.

There was a little ring inside the box.

Della looked at it and at Joe.

"Five and Ten" Synopsis

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. He buys a magnificent home after being urged by his wife, Jenny, and finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects, but to no avail. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon Lopez, a youthful gigolo. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Jennifer likes the handsome and rich Barry Rhodes, and Jenny urges her to try and win him. Berry kisses Jennifer while taking her to one of Leslie Edgerton's parties. Jennifer is not welcomed very cordially by Leslie and feels humiliated. Leslie becomes boisterous when she sees Jennifer and Berry by themselves. Leslie says she is married to Berry and Jennifer goes home feeling shamed. Rarick plans to interest Avery in a new theatrical scheme.

There was considerable excitement a few nights ago at the E. R. Frankfather store, when a neighbor lady heard a noise in the basement. She feared someone was in agony.

The lady went to the basement window and called in a loud tone "Elias" and, receiving no reply, hurriedly gave the alarm. Upon investigating, they found Elias in the basement busy with his daily routine of work and the scare was soon ended.

Disappointing Session

The Legislature Has Been Unfaithful to the Trust Reposed in It by the People.

If there was anything that the election of last November proved, it was that the people of Pennsylvania desire relief from the unfair rates and unfair practices that some of the public utilities, with the consent of an unfair Public Service Commission, have imposed upon them.

The Legislature, after investigation of the subject and accumulation of ample evidence that the charges against the utilities were well founded, has failed to enact relief measures. For this the Senate has been largely to blame.

The people also clearly demanded the abolition of the coal and iron police. Here again the Senate was recreant to its duty by killing the Musmanno bill.

The failure of the Legislature to repeal or even modify the blue law in the face of the five-to-one sentiment for a change disclosed by the Sun-Telegraph and other polls was another bitter disappointment.

The Legislature of 1931 will be remembered as unfaithful to the trust that the people reposed in it.

Presbyterian Progress

The General Assembly Has Chosen a Stronghold of the Denomination for Its Meeting.

It was an interesting coincidence and a happy omen that on the eve of the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh plans were announced for a new $500,000 church here of that denomination.

Pittsburgh is and always has been a stronghold of Presbyterianism. The early settlers were Scotch-Irish Presbyterians and they had churches established before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Our Presbyterian theological seminary is one of the oldest in the country.

The influence of these early Presbyterians has been widespread. They have brought within the fold of the denomination in the Pittsburgh district thousands of persons whose ancestry is not Scotch-Irish. The church has steadily progressed here, and continues to progress.

The General Assembly could have chosen no more appropriate place for its sessions. The people of Pittsburgh will watch its proceedings with interest.

City Tire Purchases

Full Information About the Transactions Is Desirable, Even Though No Contracts Were Drawn.

Controller Kerr now says the tire contracts sought by the Citizens' Committee in its investigation of the Department of Supplies never existed.

In lieu of written documents, then, it is desirable that all other information that can be obtained in regard to the transactions shall be forthcoming promptly.

The investigators disclose some discoveries that arouse suspicion. They say in their letter to Controller Kerr that records of tire purchases which they have examined indicate that the city may have been billed at list prices higher than the published retail list prices of the manufacturers.

If there are no formal contracts which would throw light on this, the oral testimony of all who had anything to do with the matter should be sought.

Tax Cut Promised

Councilman English Makes a Statement Which the Taxpayers Should Keep in Mind.

Chairman English, of Council's Finance Committee, has made a most important statement—one that the taxpayers would do well to keep in mind.

He has promised a cut in the city tax rate on real estate next year.

Mr. English says he and Mayor Kline talked the matter over just before the Mayor became ill and agreed the levy would have to be reduced. His purpose in making the statement, he adds, was to warn department heads to keep their estimates of 1932 financial requirements low.

It may or may not be consistent with the administration's policy of strict economy, thus announced, that Council at once proceeded to appropriate $2,600 for the purchase of a motorboat for the police. Maybe the police cannot get along very well without a new motorboat. On the other hand, the way to economize is to economize.

Coming right after City Treasurer Schooley's statement that any public official who did not realize that the tax on real estate had reached the upward limit was living in a fool's paradise, Councilman English's assurance of a reduction is undoubtedly meant to be taken at face value.

More Alcohol, More Taxes

Even the Old Saloon Didn't Do That.

The nation's liquor bill is estimated at nearly three billion dollars a year by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which gives you, in its recently published report, other interesting information about the noble experiment.

About twice as much wine is consumed as in 1914.

As for hard liquor, the money spent for it has increased about 300 per cent over 1914.

Thus the net result of prohibition has probably been to INCREASE THE AMOUNT OF ALCOHOL CONSUMED, since hard liquor contains more alcohol than wine, and wine more than beer. And another effect, which interests the taxpayer, is that the government gets no revenue out of it. The loss must be made up by INCREASING TAXES.

Marry-Go-Round

The Love Campaign

Never throw yourself at a man's head. Aim at his vanity—that's the weakest and most vulnerable spot.

A man used to start his campaign by begging for a woman's kisses as a privilege and a boon. Now he begins his "selling-talk" by telling her what a privilege and a boon he is going to bestow upon her, and what a thrill she will be missing if she overlooks the opportunity.

What the average girl seems to be looking for is a masterful, high-handed lover who can be turned into a meek, bill-paying husband by the simple twist of a marriage ceremony.

She may calmly watch her husband's bald spot increasing year by year; but to a sentimental woman it is a heart-breaking thing to see her favorite screen-lover growing gradually stout and middle-aged.

"Are You Ready for Marriage?" is the title of a new book. READY? Why, the average girl is so "ready" these go-getting days that it almost stops a man's heart action.

It is said that a toothache will drive an elephant crazy. But that's nothing. A man's toothache will sometimes drive the whole family crazy.

A woman may buy beauty by the box and charm by the flacon; but common sense, personality and a lovable disposition are dealt out by the grain to those whom the high gods love.

A man just loves to preach economy and then sit around with a cocktail in one hand and a dollar cigar in the other and watch his wife practice it.

Isn't It So?

Einstein Explains His Relativity Theory

By Archibald Henderson

The extraordinary interest displayed by the general public in relativity is one of the most curious of contemporary phenomena. Comparatively few people yet understand the theory. There is an irrepressible curiosity concerning it. People expect to learn it without studying it. They imagine that they can learn it in an hour by hearing an exposition of it by a master. Some time ago a lecture on relativity was announced to be given in the American Museum of Natural History. The crowd of people who wished to attend the lecture was so great that it blocked the approaches to the lecture and the police reserves had to be called out to disperse the crowd, which was harmless enough, being merely actuated by irrepressible, unappeasable curiosity.

Prof. Albert Einstein is, at the time of writing, lecturing on his own theories at Oxford University. So great was the crowd on the first day and so determined were they to hear the lecture, to which admittance was not allowed, that the whole force of Oxford doorkeepers was required to hold the crowd back. Had all been permitted to enter they would have been little better off at the end of the lecture than at the beginning, outside the hall. For although Prof. Einstein is a lucid and forceful lecturer, deep and sustained study is required in order to grasp the theory in its quiddity and in its entirety.

In his lecture Einstein pointed out that any important scientific theory must accomplish two things if it is to fulfill the highest functions of science. It must not violate what are known and established as the laws of phenomena. Moreover, the thoroughgoing theory must not stop with explaining the known facts of nature and explaining discrepancies. It must go further and tell what will happen under suitably chosen circumstances. The comprehensive and far-reaching scientific theory must take on the role of prophecy. It must predict, and predict successfully, what will happen.

There is a third requirement which, perhaps, is not fully filled or satisfied by Relativity—that is, as judged by the layman. A comprehensive theory must not be a mass of complicated assumptions, puzzling postulates and incomprehensible notions. It must deal in a large but elemental way with the basic problems of nature and lay down a few assumptions or axioms which are simple, natural, logical and consistent among themselves. Their inconsistency with each other, in other words, their incompatibility, might not be apparent at first—if they were inherently incompatible. But if you develop the theory logically this incompatibility will eventually reveal itself.

Einstein explains that his theory of geometry—that is, of space and time—is superior to that of Euclid. And for a number of reasons. Euclid's theory was a restricted one; it only considered one kind of space. Indeed, it would not be incorrect to assert that Euclid thought there was only one kind of space, and that space was the space of our world, of external nature, of the universe. But Einstein shows that by using the conception of a modern mathematician, Riemann, he has been able to devise a theory vastly more comprehensive than the geometry of Euclid and the mechanics of Newton. It includes their work as sound and valuable, but only as special, as particular cases, in a larger and far more comprehensive description of nature.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 28.—The silent, cob-webby mansion at 39th street and 5th avenue still stands in eerie solitude. Since the passing of its last and lone inhabitant, Miss Ella Wendell, at 81, and the resultant publicity about the eccentric family of millionaires, there is always a curious group at the curb.

Even in its hey-dey the flutter of a curtain now and then gave the scabrous brick house its only show of life. After nightfall there was the faint twitching from a coal oil lamp deep in the interior—that was all. Scarcely ever did neighbors see anyone come and go.

Next door to the north is the vacant lot with its dull and rough high board and spiked fence, said to represent a real estate value of $5,000,000. It is still being used by a caretaker as an exercising ground for the toothless and asthmatic Wendell poodle—now going blind.

A story with an unusual bad taste in press agency was printed saying Miss Wendell, a few days before death, accompanied two equally aged companions to a notorious night club and remained until 2 a. m. It further said in reckless prevarication that Miss Wendell gave the noisy hostess a $4,500 bracelet.

Miss Wendell ventured forth from her exile but seldom. Yet those who know say she was far from the type of rich recluse novels portray as living in mystery houses—swathed in eternal suspicion. She was a lively lady with a sense of humor and a wholesome interest in current events.

She merely preferred to be on the sidelines watching and not a part of the parade. She read newspaper columns, dramatic reviews and was privy to what was going on in the world which never saw her. There were times, too, when her dimming eyes twinkled over a joke on one of her few intimates.

Miss Wendell's fortune, all in real estate, was worth more than one hundred millions. She obeyed her wily old father's advice—to buy real estate, but never sell. Several blocks of Broadway frontage belonged entirely to her. Like her residence, it all needs improvement.

When a greatly disliked publisher passed away some years ago his own paper printed nine and a half columns of obituary, a panegyric in gorgeous rhetoric aflame with superlatives. When Dana, the greatly beloved editor of the Sun, went to his reward, the Sun, at his request, told the news in the following two lines:

Albert Payson Terhune, of "The Writing Terhunes," has returned from a motor trip through Italy. He was mystified in Naples when little knots of people followed him. But his astonishment knew no bounds in Venice when he was almost mobbed by friendly enthusiasts in a hotel lobby. Finally someone yelled "Viva Carnera!"—and the mystery was explained. Terhune is a strapping six footer, well tanned and muscular. In fact he was once so "nifty with his dukes" he gave Jim Corbett an anxious few moments in a gym workout.

The other day passing the Bronx zoo I dropped in to see the mongoose—one of only three snake killers in America. It suggests the ferret, softly furry and with eyes as merrily bright as Eddie Cantor's. My admiration for the mongoose borders on the hysterical since I saw a movie of one killing a cobra. It had great fun darting in and out tiring the cobra out as it struck. Finally it grabbed the snake by the back of the neck and shook it to death and scampered joyfully on its way.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Forget Them All

Forget them all, the griefs that came to you,
The strange injustices that marred your days;
Or, if recalled, see them as dreams untrue,
Dark dreams whose shadows fell across your ways.
Yet, as a dream sometimes may leave behind
A hint of truth, a gleam but half revealed,
Still seek in any cares that come, to find
The reason there, the purpose they concealed.

Forget them all; but, ah, do not forget
It lies always within your power to prove
How grief can be a potent amulet
And hate must ever cower before love;
How pain may plant a flower in the soul
And loss may leave part greater than the whole.

Text For Today Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.—I. John, iii:16.

Eleanor Patterson Sets A Good Example

Having Brains, She Works Hard.

This young woman is one of the VERY few able and successful women editing American newspapers. There ought to be many more, for women are particularly adapted to newspaper work. They know what interests human beings. And they possess INNATE INTEGRITY which is most important in newspaper work.

(Copyright, by Bachrach.)

MRS. ELEANOR PATTERSON, EDITOR OF THE WASHINGTON HERALD.

Mrs. Patterson, in addition to being a good newspaper woman, sets a good example to other prosperous women and men.

Thanks to her grandfather, Joseph Medill, who established the Chicago Tribune, Mrs. Patterson is rich, with more than a million dollars a year income, in fact A GREAT DEAL MORE.

Mrs. Patterson, if she chose, could, like many other rich men and women, devote her life to pleasure. But that doesn't suit her; she wants to work, and does work, HARD.

First she tried to buy W. R. Hearst's Washington Herald. He would not sell it.

Then she offered to rent it, paying a good rental each year for a period of 10 years. But Mr. Hearst wouldn't rent it. He compromised by giving Mrs. Patterson a job as editor of the Herald, and since she started to work, nearly a year ago, as you will read later in Mrs. Patterson's own words, the Herald has prospered brilliantly.

In a recent article in the Washington Herald, Mrs. Patterson raises various interesting questions, which you will settle in your own mind as you read her article, printed below.

She says that successful women do more bragging than men do. She thinks also women have an inferiority complex. That is true of some; others have the other complex.

Mrs. Patterson enjoys her work, as everybody does that really WORKS. Many young women could find happiness in following her example and concentrating on a job, instead of concentrating eternally on the results of beauty parlor treatments.

Here follows Mrs. Eleanor Patterson's short article on bragging and success:

'Blow, Bugle, Blow'

SUCCESSFUL women in business, politics or commercialized art pretty generally express a sense of their own importance. They like to tell you about their success. They like to tell you about the important people who think they are important.

They don't apologize and they don't explain. They don't poke honest fun at themselves. They are the heroines of their own stories. Sometimes they are grim, sometimes they are excessively calm, but always they are superior.

Successful women brag more than successful men and successful men brag quite a good deal. I guess the reason is that women are fairly new at the game and are still suffering from an inferiority complex.

Now, I'm not a successful woman. I have never worked very hard and I have never worked very well. I'm always explaining. Forever explaining. It seems to me I have to. Often I think I'm silly and I say so.

But it has gradually dawned upon me that I never WILL be a SUCCESSFUL WOMAN unless I adopt a different attitude. So I have decided to blow my own trumpet, fill my lungs and blast away with the others. Of course, I don't want to overdo the thing right at the beginning. I am still willing to admit that I don't know agate type from a 228 point Gothic scare-head. I don't know news or pictures or make-up. I don't know how to write and I don't know how to read. (That is, I don't know how to read newspapers.) I don't know the A, B, C's of circulation, advertising, editorial policy, features.

But somehow or other (I guess it's just one of those merry, little coincidences), since I came on The HERALD July 31 of last year the circulation has increased 24 per cent.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Stop using that word "depression!"

Depression isn't an inevitable thing, an excusable thing. It's a contemptible thing.

DEPRESSION, WHEN YOUR COUNTRY IS IN TROUBLE, IS AS CONTEMPTIBLE AS DESERTION WHEN YOUR COUNTRY IS UNDER FIRE.

You despise a deserter. You understand his temptation, of course. You, too, have been afraid and wanted to run away. But a real man doesn't let himself run away just because he's afraid. If he has the spunk of a tick, he sticks.

That's the way you think about a man who runs away with his legs. BUT IT HAS NEVER OCCURRED TO YOU TO THINK IN THAT WAY ABOUT THE MAN WHO RUNS AWAY WITH HIS MIND. Yet a man can be yellow with his mind as well as with his legs. And during this last year we Americans, who were always so proud of our courage, have turned yellow! We are running away, just as surely as the deserter runs away. Only we call his cowardice "desertion." And we call our cowardice "depression." BUT THE EFFECT ON THE COUNTRY IS THE SAME.

"But times are hard," you say. "It's bound to make a fellow do some serious thinking—"

Sure, times are hard. And we should all do serious thinking. But that's no sign that we should resign ourselves to depression. Times were hard for that little army at Valley Forge. But they didn't sit around wallowing in gloom, thinking how hard times were. THEY KEPT MOVING! Ragged and hungry, bleeding and freezing, they kept moving . . . UNTIL THEY MOVED TO VICTORY, AND GAVE THIS COUNTRY TO YOU AND TO ME.

THEY LICKED HARD TIMES BY KEEPING MOVING.

Sitting down and yielding to depression would have been as frightful a crime for them as running away. IT'S AS FRIGHTFUL A CRIME NOW. IT WILL LICK US JUST AS SURELY, IF WE CONTINUE TO DO IT.

Trouble is, things have been so soft and easy for the last 10 years that we've gradually been losing our self-respect. Fifty years ago if a big, healthy, young nation had abandoned itself to "depression" just because it was in a bit of a jam, the rest of the world would have given it the razz. But we've been lolling around, listening to so many "blue" songs, that we no longer think it's disgusting to act like Big Cry Babies when things go wrong. We're not ashamed to say we're depressed—not ashamed to admit we're taking the count. Indeed, we're getting so we almost boast about it. We compare our various depressions as old ladies once compared operations.

Stop it! Erase that word depression from your vocabulary. Wipe your chin and tie up your ears and begin to act like a man! Cut out the bleats and get moving. If you can't lick the hard times you can at least go through the motions. Hustle all you can! Laugh all you can! Spend all you can! Hope all you can! If you can't burst into carols of joy, you can at least refrain from a fit of pouts—AND THAT'S SOMEPIN! Indeed, that's a lot. For as soon as we stop acting licked, we won't be. THE MOST VICIOUS THING THAT AMERICA HAS TO FIGHT TODAY IS HER OWN BELLIAKIN.
